JEROME DEMANDS THAW AS STATE WARD

FOSS ASKS INQUIRY AT ONCE

Plans for an immediate and thorough investigation of the New Haven's "underground fund" were made today at a conference between Governor Foss and Chairman MacLeod of the Public Service Commission.

After spending an hour with the Governor in the latter's private office, Chairman MacLeod announced that the commission will begin its inquiry this week.

Governor Foss at the conference formally demanded that the commission start its hearing at once. The Governor told Chairman MacLeod that the people have the right to know exactly what the New Haven management did with its "underground fund"—particularly to know how the railroad disbursed the $101,533.33, to whom and why.

"And especially," added the Governor, "must we find out for what purpose these moneys were spent.

Governor Explains Point.

"It is absolutely essential under existing circumstances, and because of the dissatisfaction in the public mind," the Governor went on, "that the present suspicions should be cleared up."

After the conference Governor Foss declared the amount of the fund was not of most importance.

"Of supreme importance," he declared, "is the fact that the moneys may have been expended for illegal purposes. That is the point of the whole proposition, and that is the question on which we should get all the facts possible."

President Elliott, in replying to Governor Foss' first letter, quotes the answers he sent the AMERICAN, in reply to five questions on the New England Railroad situation.

Governor Foss' second letter reads:

Foss Demands Facts.

My Dear Mr. Elliott: Many thanks for your prompt reply to my letter

Arrest Fugitive After 2-Year Chase

After a two-year chase all over the United States and from Wyoming to Boston, Henry Hack, twenty-six, was arrested today in Norwood by immigration inspectors, on the charge of being an undesirable citizen. He is wanted in St. Francis, Ontario, on a murder charge.

The arrest was made at the request of the Canadian immigration authorities. Two years ago Hack evaded the Canadian authorities on the border and got into this country.

Will Adopt Orphans Instead of Lap Dogs

Washington Woman Takes Burns' Advice; Gets 2 from Workhouse.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Two London workhouse orphans will soon find themselves installed in a luxurious Washington home as the adopted children of a wealthy woman.

This is the direct result of the advice to children, women, given by John Burns, that they should adopt orphans instead of lap dogs.

The Washington woman applied to the Brentwood poor law authorities for a healthy boy and girl. The children offered will be examined by an eminent physician before the final choice is made.

Ex-Governor's Son Can't Get Home for Months.

Eben S. Draper, Jr., son of the former Governor, whose mother died only a few days ago, is on a ship frozen in the ice at Flaxman Island, Alaska, and cannot get home until next Summer, it became known today.

Draper and a party of sportsmen and moving picture men, on the power schooner Polar Bear, were bound for Coronation Gulf, where the blue-eyed Eskimos live, and hoped to reach it before the ice caught them.

The news that the vessel was frozen in, came in dispatches from Seattle, where Mrs. Louise Lane, wife of the commander of the Polar Bear, is living.

Labor Prepares for Big War in Britain

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The gauge has been flung down by the labor unions in answer to the employers' proposed fund of $250,000,000 and the formation of the United Kingdom employers' defence union, the object of which was announced to be the consolidating of the resources of the employers and the maintenance of their rights and freedom to deal with labor unions. The organization is made up of eighty-one local or trade federations. The trade unions are to be converted into a fighting machine.

Baltimore County Would Divide Races

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 30.—In accordance with a resolution adopted at a mass meeting of residents of Baltimore County to protest against the location at Mt. Washington, a suburb, of Morgan College, a negro institution, the next session of the Maryland Legislature will be asked to pass a race segregation law for the metropolitan belt of Baltimore County. Mentioned in principle with the segregation ordinance of Baltimore city,

ZERRAHN ORDERED TO LEAVE

Miss Madeline Brown of No. 156 Elm street, Quincy, who was to have married Paul Zerrahn, member of the First Corps Cadets and a prominent Milton young man, has lost parts of the trousseau she had prepared, as a result of the postponed marriage, it was stated today.

Garments, linen and household fittings bought by the young girl and her mother had been sent to the apartment Zerrahn had engaged in Lowell before the wedding plans had been broken. Shortly afterward the furniture and everything else in the apartment was attached for rent by the proprietor of the apartment. Now Miss Brown cannot recover her belongings.

This was the development today in the Zerrahn case. Young Zerrahn disappeared when the wedding was postponed, and, though his father says he is at home, the young man has not been seen by the neighbors. Why the wedding was postponed remains a mystery. One neighbor said:

Neighbor Tells of Quarrel.

Paul Zerrahn called at the Brown home Saturday evening, September 20. About 10:20 that evening we heard loud talking and the street door was flung suddenly open and Zerrahn, Miss Brown and Geo. H. Brown (the girl's father) were in the hallway.

Miss Brown was crying as her father said to Mr. Zerrahn, "Leave this house instantly. Go! Don't you ever darken my door again!"

The girl tried to intercede in behalf of her fiance, imploring the father not to be so severe with him. Her intercession availed nothing, as Zerrahn left the house and the door was shut with a resounding bang.

After Mr. Zerrahn's departure, Madeline said to her father, "I will marry Paul in spite of anything that he has done. No matter what people think of him, our engagement cannot be broken off. I want to marry him anyway."

To this Mr. Brown replied, "I have said that you cannot marry Paul Zerrahn, and that settles it."

When a reporter called at the Brown home today Mrs. Brown answered the bell and said:

Zerrahn Can Tell All.

I have nothing to say to the reporters. Neither will Miss Madeline say anything. You'll have to see my husband, Mr. Brown, as to our feelings in the matter. Or, better, go and talk with Mr. Zerrahn. He can tell you all about the difficulty if he will, as it has nothing to do with our side of the match.

Miss Madeline Pollock, No. 54 Bigelow street, Quincy, an aunt of Miss Brown's, said:

It is a very sad affair to all of us. The poor girl is nearly sick over it. I cannot give you any particulars except to say that the breaking off of the engagement was no fault of my niece.

Another woman said:

Mrs. Alice Cobb, an aunt of Miss Brown, told me that Madeline had taken all of her linen and bedding, together with other articles in her "dowry," to the new home in Lowell, where they had been attached along with the furniture that Mr. Zerrahn had had put there. I understand that Madeline cannot touch her things there on that account.

Mrs. Pollock, Mrs. Brown's mother, and grandmother to the young lady in the case, removed Paul Zerrahn's photograph from the double frame in which it reposed along with Madeline's until last Thursday and deliberately tore it up, saying that it would be a good thing for all concerned if young Zerrahn would never come back.

SENATOR ABLE TO SIT UP

"Well on the road to recovery and able to sit up a little," was the bulletin issued today concerning the condition of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was "much improved" early today and was steadily recovering from the shock of the operation performed upon him last Friday.

The operation, it was learned today, was of the most serious nature. A "gunshot effect" on the wall of the stomach had broken through the lining so that the contents of the stomach were in danger of escaping into the abdominal cavity.

Senator Lodge's condition had been diagnosed as "acute indigestion" until the operation became necessary to save his life.

Dr. Francis Harrington, it is stated, performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Frederick Winslow.

Until Sunday night Senator Lodge's life was despaired of. Then he rallied, and today the following bulletin was issued by Dr. Winslow:

"Senator Lodge was much improved early today. He had a good night and slept well. His nervous strain is passing off and he is becoming more calm. Visitors will not be allowed to disturb him, and we have every hope for his swift recovery.

Today Mrs. Lodge, wife of the Senator, said:

The Senator had a very comfortable night and all the conditions favorable for his recovery continue."

Senator Lodge's illness had been kept a complete secret. He left Washington about ten days ago, feeling indisposed. His absence from the Senate chamber was noticed, but was satisfactorily explained, it is understood.

At his home in Nahant he took to his bed. His case became more serious, and after a consultation of doctors the operation was determined upon.

The operation revealed a condition that would have been necessarily fatal in a short time but for the remedy adopted.

Mitchel Quoted at 8 to 10 in Betting

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Money to be placed on John Purroy Mitchel showed into the financial district today. Fred Schumm reported several small bets on Mitchel at 8 to 10 compared with even money on Saturday. One broker placed $2,000 to $1,400 and $500 to $350 on McCall.

Hurled 40 Feet by Express Train, Man Walks Off

Hurled forty feet through the air by an express train, making a complete turn in transit and landing on the rail of a freight track at Quincy, Frank Marino instantly got up again and started to walk away today. Marino was on the platform of the Quincy Adams station of the New Haven road today and came too near a speeding express. An examination disclosed nothing more serious than a cut in the head and a broken rib.

MANSFIELD GETS JAIL SENTENCE

The Ferncroft inn cases in Salem ended today with verdicts of "guilty" against each defendant, and the severest sentences on record were imposed in each case.

Harry K. Mansfield, proprietor of the fashionable resort, was charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance. He was fined $500 and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction. He appealed to the Superior Court, which meets next month in Lawrence, and furnished $1,000 bonds.

Charles Johnson, on the same charge, was fined $50 and held in $300 upon his appeal.

Giles Morrill, charged with conducting a gambling house, was fined $50 and held in $500 upon appeal.

John D. Mitchell, charged with selling intoxicants to a girl and on two counts with maintaining a liquor nuisance, was fined $50 on the first count and $50 fine and a month in the House of Correction was imposed on the two "nuisance" charges. He furnished $900 bonds. Then Judge Sears ordered that the Ferncroft inn, on defendant's record in the case, be fined $50, in spite of the protests of defence attorneys.

"Count" on the Stand.

This was the sixth day of the trial in Salem Superior Court, in which the most sensational evidence has been presented. The Waters and Ward Society was complainant and the prosecuting witnesses were agents of the society.

The defence charged that these witnesses had not only "gone the limit" in the enjoyments Ferncroft inn had to offer, but had continued their revels after leaving the inn.

Ambassador Dumba Sails Incognito

Herr Constantin Dumba, Austrian Ambassador at Washington, sailed for Europe today on the Cunard liner Franconia. His name was not on the passenger list. The ambassador was recognized by newspaper reporters. Several weeks ago the ambassador came to Boston to see his wife off to Europe. No one could explain why the ambassador sailed "incog" today.

Bryan Eases Way for Honeymoon

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—Secretary Bryan has written personal letters to American officials in Europe asking them to extend every possible courtesy to Captain Clark Smith of the Engineer Corps, and Miss Orian Dyer of St. Louis, who were married today.

NEW YORK LAWYER REVEALS NEMESIS' PLAN

CONCORD, N. H. Sept. 30—William Travers Jerome now plans to seize Harry Thaw as a ward of the State of New York.

This is an entirely new move in the case on the part of Harry's enemy and would involve some nice questions of law if tried in the State of New Hampshire.

This threat of Jerome leaked out here today through a statement made by one of his associates. Jerome only plans this move in case of defeat before Governor Felker.

LAWYERS SAY MOVE MIGHT BE SUCCESSFUL.

If Governor Felker does not sign the extradition papers sending Thaw back to New York, then the plan to seize Thaw as a ward of New York will be put into execution.

Good lawyers here believe that the New Hampshire authorities might be compelled to return Thaw as a ward although they could refuse to deliver him up either as a prisoner or as a man escaped from an insane asylum.

Here is what Jerome's associates said:

Says Jerome Won't Quit.

Even if extradition is refused, the fight will be but just begun. Jerome will not quit. Felker's decision will by no means settle the case.

Jerome can do one of two things. He can secure an indictment on some other than a conspiracy charge, and can on this indictment demand Thaw's extradition.

Or he can have a guard from Matteawan asylum here waiting, and this man can arrest Thaw. The Matteawan guard would be in the position of Thaw's legal guardian, since the New York law makes insane persons State wards, and this guard would represent the State.

The fight has just begun, and this last plan, to arrest Thaw as insane and demand his return as a ward of the State of New York, might very well succeed after all other plans failed.

No Clash, Say Thaw Lawyers.

This declaration came as a tremendous surprise today, for Jerome told Governor Felker at the extradition hearing:

Your decision will settle the thing.

And if you refuse extradition the fight will be over.

Thaw's attorneys today denied that there was any "clash" among them as a result of Thaw's signed statement offering to go back to New York if Jerome could produce an indictment secured prior to the extradition hearing.

Merrill Shurtleff, a Thaw attorney, said:

Before Thaw issued the statement he sent for me and I looked it over and suggested some changes, which were made. I acted for all the Thaw counsel and there is no hard feeling of any kind.

Nathaniel Martin, another Thaw attorney, said:

All of us (Thaw's attorneys) are

Eleonora Sears Has Economy Adventure

Eleonora Sears has just indulged in another adventure—one of many in her long list—it developed today. This time it was an adventure in economy.

Miss Sears and "Freddy" Prince, son of Frederick Prince, the Boston financier, each rode one of Miss Sears' horses from Beverly to Winter quarters in Boston, thereby saving $10, which Miss Sears donated to charity.

Miss Sears is preparing to close her Summer home on October 3, and ordinarily the horses would have been brought to Boston by grooms. The day was fine, however, and Miss Sears invited Prince to accompany her on the ride.

COAL MINER ENTOMBED FIVE DAYS STILL LIVES.
WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 30.—After being entombed five days in the Mammoth vein of the Continental mines, Thomas Trotosky, a coal miner, today signalled that he still lived. An opening was made and food and clothing were passed by a pipe. A 180-foot ledge of rock must be bored before Trotosky can be removed.

MANUEL'S FRIENDS DENY BRIDE HAS QUIT HIM.
LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 30.—Monarchist friends of ex-King Manuel claimed today to have received dispatches from the former Portuguese monarch stating that there had been no estrangement between Manuel and his bride and that they would continue their honeymoon when the latter recovers her health.

busy on the brief to be presented to-morrow for this ridiculous story of Governor Felker. There is no foundation for the stories of friction.

Attorney George Morris, aided by Messrs. Shurtleff, Martin and Dongan, today began the drafting of the Thaw brief, which is to be filed with Governor Felker by October 6 and within twenty-four hours after the filing of which the Governor has promised to give his decision.

Bernard Jacobs of Lancaster, New Hampshire representative of Jerome, who has not yet reappeared here, called at the State House to see Attorney-General Tuttle. The latter was out of town. The assistant Nemesis did not make known the object of his visit.

Thaw declared today that he felt a great deal better, and that his cold appeared to be leaving him.

He took an automobile ride to nearby Manchester, accompanied by his guards. The party drove about the streets without being recognized.

Thaw received a newspaper clipping defending him, enclosed in a letter from Battling Nelson, in which the fighter said:

"This is O. K. It's fair. I'm pulling for you to get the decision."

Thaw and a bellboy spent an hour or so packing away a truckful of letters he has received since his escape from Matteawan. These seemed to remember every letter by sight, and commented on them as he packed them—one remembering the name of the writer from a simple glance at the handwriting.

No Fleas for Harry.

A vaudeville artist sent to Thaw today, asking to exhibit before him a troupe of trained fleas.

"Thanks," Thaw replied. "I'm busy enough scratching for my liberty without my fleas around."

The prisoner went on an auto ride with Officer C. D. Stevens, passing the smokeless mills, and riding through Manchester.

Mary Green, a young New York woman, came on here yesterday and asked to see Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, but was not allowed to meet the prisoner's mother, nor himself.

Sheriff Drew, who officially has Thaw in charge, is getting fat at the job. He says today:

"I weigh 251—eleven more than Professor Taft. My wife says its starvation for me when we get home, so I hope they leave Thaw here forever."

WHITMAN AGREES TO INDIRECT ACTION IN N. Y. AS COMPROMISE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—District Attorney Whitman sent word to Acting Governor Glynn today that he would consent to the naming of a deputy attorney-general to present any evidence against Thaw in New York proper, where Jerome claims the Matteawan escape plot was hatched.

Whitman's action comes in the nature, it is believed, of a compromise.

Besought by both Thaw's Nemesis, Jerome, and Grossman, one of the brightest lights of the Thaw legal forces, District Attorney Whitman declared that he would himself not take the action desired by Jerome and opposed by Grossman, but would allow the naming of a deputy attorney-general to appear before the Grand Jury in his jurisdiction.

Partial Victory for Jerome.

The deputy attorney-general, it is believed, will bepond a doubt be Jerome, already named the State's special attorney-general in the Thaw case.

It is by some regarded as a partial victory for Jerome. Others say that Whitman's own hands of policy inflicted that he has little faith in Jerome's seventh-day claim that the law has been broken in New York.

District Attorney Whitman's message today says the evidence against Thaw may be submitted "for conspiracy or any other crime." That it is not limited to conspiracy alone leads many to believe Jerome may have some other charge than conspiracy up his sleeve against Thaw.

THAW SAILS DIRECT TO PHILADELPHIA IF FREED AT CONCORD

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 30.—In the event of Harry K. Thaw securing his release, his legal advisers have planned for his returning to Pennsylvania by boat, leaving this State from Portsmouth just as soon as Thaw may be released.

Thaw heartily agrees with the plans, for its advantages are plain to him.

The chief reason is that if Thaw leaves New Hampshire by water and speedily gets outside the three-mile limit, it will be impossible for Jerome, the lawyers say, to molest him. Then, counsel feel that once Thaw is safe in Pennsylvania, there will be little danger of Jerome being able to trouble him so long as he stays in the Keystone State.

The plan calls for the boat going direct from Portsmouth to Philadelphia, where Thaw will disembark for his home in the suburbs of Pittsburg.

Woman's Body Found by Cellar Diggers

Police of Paris, Ill., Trying to Solve Death Mystery.

PARIS, Ill., Sept. 30.—The police today faced a murder mystery in the discovery of a woman's body in a box buried a few feet below the surface of the ground. The crude grave was found by workmen digging for a basement in the best residence section of Paris. The woman's skull had been crushed and her body doubled in order to fit into the box.

A coroner's physician said it was impossible to determine how long the woman had been dead.

Report Woodruff's Condition Better

Physician Hurriedly Summoned to Stricken Leader.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Timothy L. Woodruff, former Lieutenant-Governor of New York, who was stricken with paralysis while speaking at the Fusion rally Boston meeting in Cooper Union last night, was reported improved today. Mr. Woodruff, a Republican leader who went over to the Progressives, was stricken in the presence of thousands of persons, including John Purroy Mitchel, the Fusion nominee for Mayor.

The following bulletin was issued at 10 o'clock by John Woodruff, a son of the stricken man:

Mr. Woodruff is suffering from an entire collapse of the nervous system. It has partly affected his left side. His mental condition is normal, and it is hoped by his physicians that the symptoms of paralysis will disappear.

Immigration Bill Held Up in Congress

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Representative Sabath of Illinois, one of the leaders in the opposition to the immigration bill passed by the late Congress and vetoed by President Taft, went to the White House to find out the truth of reports that President Wilson would try to put through Congress a bill of similar character. The President, it was told, has not considered the immigration question, and did not see how it could be passed at the present crowded session.

2 Husbands Meet at Slain Wife's Side

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Everett A. Rexroat, second husband of Mrs. Mildred Allison-Rexroat, dancing teacher, who was murdered near Wayne, Ill., on Friday night, and William H. Allison, first husband, faced each other near the body of the slain woman in undertaking rooms in West Chicago today, and a dramatic scene followed. Allison, eyes filled with tears, stepped forward as though to attack Rexroat; then shrugged his shoulders and walked away.

Belasco Prevents Stage Hands' Strike

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Declaring that he refused to be "blackmailed or throttled" by any man who might attempt to stop his play, "The Temperamental Journey," David Belasco caused the arrest of two delegates of the Stage Hands' Union, who stood at the stage door of the Republic Theatre and attempted to get the stage employes to strike.

Evelyn's Love Story

CHAPTER XXXII.

"Much may be said on both sides."—(Spectator.)

July came in on Sunday that year and the newspapers, in their large Sunday editions, reviewed the Thaw case and added what new facts they could assemble.

One of the most interesting revelations of that day was the published diary of P. L. Bergoff, a private detective, who was Stanford White's bodyguard. Bergoff was manager of the Vigilant Detective Bureau in New York and was employed by White to protect him and to watch others who were shadowing him.

Bergoff preceded his diary by an introductory defence of Stanford White, as follows:

There is a side to the story of the assassination of Stanford White which has not been told, and I am going to tell it. The big architect was square with me and I am not afraid to speak out the truth, although his attorneys and others have been strangely silent.

Between February 14, 1905, and June 25, 1906, Mr. White paid me $6,000, which sum was disbursed during that period in the protection of the person and the shadowing of a band of private detectives, hired by Harry K. Thaw, the Pittsburgh millionaire.

(Note—The two dates include from two months prior to Thaw's marriage up to the night White was shot.)

I further charge that Mr. White was so hounded by Thaw's sleuths up to 5 o'clock on the night of his death, and that if it were not a matter for young Mr. Thaw to know where Mr. White was last Monday night, for his paid sleuths were even keen on the job. Four of them, in an automobile, followed the architect when he left his office at No. 100 Fifth avenue at that hour.

I also charge that not only did the Thaw-paid sleuths follow Mr. White, but they were put on the trail of Miss Paulina Desmond and Miss Gertie Grant, two actresses who were unfortunate in being acquaintances of the architect.

However, I will tell my story just as the events developed, and beg the public judge as to the underlying motives of the principals. If I were without gratitude and a sense of justice I would not tell my story.

Bergoff's diary of his work for Stanford White said that, while he was on a divorce case, he noticed a number of detectives from another agency trailing a tall man to the Manhattan Club. Bergoff learned that the man shadowed was Stanford White, a rich architect. Scenting a good stroke of business for himself, Bergoff went to White. What happened, Bergoff's diary then relates, under the following dates:

February 14 (1905). I called upon Mr. White at his office, No. 100 Fifth avenue. He received me at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and I recited briefly the incidents which I had observed. When Mr. White learned that he was being shadowed he laughed nervously and bit his lip until they bled. "You must be mistaken. There is no one following me now," he said. I assured him there was no mistaking the identity of the detectives.

March 8.—I was still calling every day at Mr. White's office and was with him almost every night. He would send me tickets in advance for theatres he expected to attend. When I called at his office there was always a good cigar, supplemented by the eager question: "Well, what have you learned?"

March 15.—Mr. White grew anxious to know who was having the work done. He seemed like a man recovering from fear of an unknown foe. "I cannot understand," he said to me, "I have never knowingly, in all my life, wronged either man or woman."

March 15.—Mr. White advised me to go to Howe & Hummel and get a settlement up to date, which I did. Mr. Young gave me a check for $500. He then made a new agreement with me, by which I was to go to any expense in getting the proof of the identity of the man who was behind the Greater New York Detective Agency, (the one trailing White).

I was instructed to hire automobiles, sail and any sort of equipage and to put my men into Delmonico's, Sherry's, the Cafe Martin, in fact, in every dining place along Broadway where it might be necessary. The expense often ran up to over $100 a day.

March 16.—Mr. White now directed the work of my men in person. I engaged a number of extra operatives, including John E. Fox.

March 18.—We began to shadow every man in the employ of the Greater New York Agency, including the bookkeeper and stenographer. Mr. White was growing more anxious and was urging us to redouble our efforts.

March 19.—I advised Mr. White to have the sleuths arrested and, in this way, there would be a cessation of the annoyance, even if the principal never was disclosed, but Mr. White insisted that the work go on. He said to me, "I have long suspected the man who is having this work done, but I must have the absolute proof and you must get it. If an arrest was made this could not be done." Then he added, in a lowering tone: "Show me that you are a real detective."

I sent her son to the Greater New York Detective Bureau in search of employment. In every detective agency there is a room where the operatives hang out, smoke and exchange experiences. Here I soon had my brother and others of my men.

March 22.—Charles F. Kuhrt was the lucky one, for he has been put at work shadowing White.

March 23.—My man Kuhrt has passed as a man of wealth, only following the detective business for the excitement of it.

March 23.—Kuhrt has become well acquainted with Superintendent J. W. Rorke, who, by reason of his executive position, looks over the reports of the operatives and attends to sending these reports to the man who foots the bills.

March 29.—Rorke and Kuhrt went out together with a party of women. Over a quart of wine, which was paid for with money furnished by Stanford White, Rorke confided to Kuhrt the name of the man who was putting up the money for the shadowing of the rich architect.

The name of this man was Harry Kendall Thaw, the Pittsburg millionaire."

Injects Cocaine, Tortoises Gambol

PARIS, Sept. 30.—For some time past the keepers at the zoological gardens have noticed an agitation among the tortoises which are generally the most quiet of animals. A veterinary was called in and declared the tortoises were afflicted with St. Vitus' dance. Today a white haired man was caught injecting cocaine into a tortoise with a syringe. He proved to be demented.

EVELYN THAW WINS AUDIENCE IN 'MARIETTA'

By WESLEY HAMER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw made her debut as a real actress with a part to play at the West End Theatre in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street last night.

She appeared for the first time as the star in "Marietta," called a musical divertissement, by Maurice Voisy.

Miss Thaw's part calls for a lot of pantomime and she did it so exceedingly well last night that the audience applauded her heartily. The audience, said to be the largest ever in the West End Theatre on Monday night, gave her a splendid reception when she appeared and continued its applause all during the evening.

Miss Thaw is now surrounded by her very pretentious company, and her protracted stay under the management of William Hammerstein has done much to develop her into a first-class performer, well worth seeing on her merit, aside from her name. In addition to Jack Clifford, her dancing partner, the cast contains Enrico Zanfreesa, Cisele Hayden, Milford Cromar, Louise La Salle, Jessie Piper and a host of others.

The company, including the ballet, contains seventy-five persons. The piece is presented in three acts—Rudolph's studio, the Cafe Rizet and the Garden of Lovers.

There is a connected story running through the three acts, which are replete with bright moments. At no time did the interest lag.

In the chorus of the second and third scenes a number of novelties were introduced by way of variation.

These included the Schwartz brothers, Miss Bernard, Willie Weston, Armand Brothers, and other trick performers.

The show is somewhat on the style of a Continental entertainment, and is strung together so well that it is bound to have success.

"WAS EVELYN WORTH SAVING? SOME REPLIES

Was Evelyn Thaw worth saving? Gertrude Atherton, the novelist, says she was not. Here are a few more letters expressing the opinions of women who do not agree with Mrs. Atherton.

"Not Fickle Woman."

The first chapter of Evelyn Thaw's own story of her life interested me. After reading that remarkable tribute to her mother, I am forced to confess that she is not the fickle woman that the public has been led to believe she is. Her frankness and honesty appeals to me. She conceals nothing, which in itself is a great virtue. She is certainly worth saving. Her own life may have its dark spots, but the bright shine overshadows the wrong she has done.

Question Concerns Benefit.

In answer to your question, "Was the life of Evelyn Thaw worth saving?" permit me to say that these things should not be discussed from a silly, sentimental standpoint, but viewed broadly. The real question concerns the benefit to the whole world. And then there can be only one answer. Can it be conceived that White—that great master of line and form, was not worth more to the world than that pretty-faced dancing girl? Of course Gertrude Atherton was right. Evelyn Thaw was not worth saving.

SALEM SCHOOL TEAM 'DOPED,' SAYS DOCTOR

School athletic circles are stirred today by the charge of Dr. Ralph E. Bicknell of Swampscott that he gave eleven tablets, each containing one-fortieth of a grain of strychnine, to a Salem man, intended as "dope" for the Witch City High School football team between the halves in last Saturday's game with the Swampscott High.

Strychnine is known to be a powerful stimulant, and Dr. Bicknell is morally certain that the man who asked him for it, claiming to be a coach for the Salem eleven, wanted it for that purpose.

It is noted that the strychnine was called for "between halves." Reports of the game in the Sunday papers, printed before the "dope" charges became known, say: "In the first half the teams played evenly, but Swampscott was unable to stand the pace in the closing periods."

Today the Swampscott supporters are declaring that the reason the second period was not as even as the first was because the Swampscott boys, playing without stimulants, were overcome by the artificial energy sent the Salem visitors by the eleven strychnine tablets.

They think Geothine, Salem's halfback, who intercepted a forward pass and shot down the field twenty yards before he was thrown, making a touchdown on the next play, may have taken two of the tablets. The other score in the twelve to nothing game was won by grilling football, just the kind in which artificial stimulus would be of perhaps the greatest service.

Today both Harry McDevitt, coach of the Salem team, and Henry Sullivan, graduate manager of athletics at the Salem High, deny any knowledge of the strychnine incident. It was not McDevitt who asked for the strychnine. Sullivan is said to know nothing about the drug.

Could Identify Man.

Dr. Bicknell strongly intimates, however, that he could indentify the man who did ask him for it, and that the man is connected with the Salem eleven. He said he was asked for two tablets for each of the men, but that he did not have twenty-two tablets with him, and warned the man that it would be too much to administer in any event. Dr. Bicknell cannot say what became of the tablets after he handed them over to the applicant.

According to Dr. Bicknell, the incident took place in the Clarke School, Swampscott, used as a dressing room by the players during the football season.

BARTLETT LEFT A MILLION TO SEARS SISTERS

Like the romance of an Arabian Nights tale is the story of how the love of Francis Bartlett, lawyer, art lover, and philanthropist, led him in death to pour practically all of his million dollar estate into the laps of his two favorite grandchildren—pretty Phyllis Sears and her sister, Mrs. Bayard Warren, who was before her marriage the famous "Lily" Sears.

Under the will of the aged millionaire who died a week ago, the two grandaughters he favored through life come by his death into a half million dollar estate each. This is the most bountiful sum which Dame Fortune—always generous in her dealings with the two beautiful Sears sisters—has ever brought them.

Big Gift to Museum.

Before his death Mr. Bartlett, who astonished art circles by his gift of $1,500,000 to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts several years ago, gave again and again to the two grandchildren. Last Christmas to the younger sister, Phyllis, he gave a $100,000 pearl necklace, called at the time the most precious gift ever received by any Boston society girl. To her sister Elizabeth, who was popularly known as the dashing "Lily" Sears before she wedded young Bayard Warren last January, he gave a $100,000 home at Pride's Crossing.

In his will, which has just been filed at Salem, Miss Phyllis receives in addition to the other vast fortune the sum of $125,000. Except a few private bequests and $100,000 to be divided among Boston charities, the two sisters share the rest of the estate in trust. Yet the trustees are given full power to turn the property over to the grandchildren at any time they consider it wise to do so.

The will provides that if the sisters shall die without issue and shall not dispose of the property by will and the trust shall not have been terminated, then these bequests shall become effective:

Provision In Will.

Boston Museum of Fine Arts, $200,000; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, $100,000; Harvard College, $100,000; Harvard Medical School, $50,000; Massachusetts General Hospital, $50,000.

The two Sears sisters are among the most attractive and popular members of Back Bay and North Shore society. From the estate of their mother the two girls are to share $6,000,000. This, with the fortune left them by their grandfather, will make them the wealthiest girls in Massachusetts.

Before Mr. Bartlett's death, Miss Phyllis had been preparing for her debut this Fall, and it was planned to be one of the most lavish coming-out parties in years. Like her sister "Lil" she is an expert at tennis, riding and other out-door sports and is a leader in society's "athletic" set. The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Sears last Winter was one of the largest and most brilliant ever seen in Boston.

SEARS GIRLS BEQUEATHED MILLION.

The love of the late Francis Bartlett, lawyer and patron of the arts, for his favorite grandchildren, Phyllis Sears (on left) and Mrs. Bayard Warren (formerly Elizabeth Sears), had been demonstrated frequently during his life, but never more so than in his will, by which he left them a princely sum.

Trading Stamps As Divorce Grounds

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Anna Briscoe has been granted an uncontested divorce from Pasquale Briscoe, a private in the United States army, stationed at Fort Thomas. Mrs. Briscoe testified before Insolvency Judge Harry Hunt that she and her husband quarrelled because she wanted a wash boiler and he wanted a watch in exchange for a quantity of trading stamps they had saved.

Norwood's Police Probe Leads to Safe

Suspended Chief Lavers Says He Will Open It for Investigator.

James W. Lavers, suspended as chief of police of Norwood pending investigation into charges preferred against him, is expected to appear at police headquarters this afternoon to open the safe there so Gaston Boissonnault of New York, conducting the examination for the citizens of the town, may gain access to the books.

"Don't worry," said Lavers today to Acting Chief Walter Readel, "I will show up and open the safe. There is nothing concealed there incriminating to me."

"It does not worry me in the least if Lavers doesn't show up," said Boissonnault. "If he doesn't appear, it will be an easy matter to get a safe expert. I already have the arrest sheets and these I will consult to see if certain alleged payments to the chief have been made."

Burned to Death Aboard Rivadavia

Fore River Draughtsman Perishes in Spirit Room Blaze.

James G. Laidlaw, thirty, a draughtsman employed at the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, Quincy, living at No. 3 Edward street, was burned to death today on board the Argentine warship Rivadavia.

Laidlaw, inspecting the vessel, which returned to the yard for repairs, went into the spirit room where are kept the turpentine, gasoline and other inflammables and into which only an electric light is supposed to be carried. It is believed he must have lighted a match or used a candle, for instantly a dense smoke filled the entire vessel.

No one could reach the room for almost two hours, when Lally and Frick, employes of the yard, managed to crawl in and bring out the body, which was burned almost beyond recognition and could only be identified at the noon hour when the time checks were turned in. He leaves a wife and one child.

SENATOR TOOK BACK RING, SAYS CHORUS GIRL

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—That State Senator William J. Hoffeman gave her a promise of marriage and a ring in the evening of February 19 last, but next day took the ring from her and there after failed to keep the promise, is alleged in the complaint of Miss Adele De Pauliis Pinatti, the chorus girl, who has begun an action for breach of promise, demanding $25,000.

The summons and complaint have been served on Senator Hoffeman, now in Albany, where the young woman recently was playing in a musical comedy, "Oh, I Say."

Miss Pinatti alleges that several times the senator, who was married a week ago to a young woman in Brooklyn, promised to marry her. The ring he gave as a token of the engagement, she states, he afterward "took from the plaintiff by force."

Ball Players Lose in Alleged Swindle

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—Numerous big league baseball players believe they have been swindled as a result of the Indictments charging Thomas H. Smart and eleven associates with using the mails to defraud in disposing of building lots in New Jersey. Among the players who bought lots were Hans Wagner and Pitcher Claude Hendrix of the Pirates and Pitcher Falkenberg of the Naps.

"Lid" Will Stay on, Says Mayor Kline

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Mayor Kline has announced that he has decided to renew the all night restaurant licenses now in existence, nineteen in all. He said that new permits of that character would be issued only after painstaking investigation of each application. The Mayor appeared to be greatly vexed at the rumor which has been circulated that he is about to lift the "lid" off the Tenderloin.

Stowaway Is Sent Back in Mid-Ocean

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The discovery of a stowaway in a lifeboat aboard the Mississippi caused that vessel to be more than three hours late on account of stopping in mid-ocean to transship the stowaway to a sister steamship bound for London. The stowaway was Johann Steiner, a German.

Find Gaynor Estate Less Than $500,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The executors of the estate of the late Mayor Gaynor filed, it is said, it will not quite reach $500,000. It was estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

DEFENCE HARD HIT BY STORY IN SULZER CASE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—A sensation was caused at the high court of impeachment today when Melville Fuller, under questions from Chief Justice Cullen admitted that Governor Sulzer's account was charged on the books of Harris and Fuller so as to make it appear that his stock transactions were a loan account and not a speculative account. Chief Justice Cullen started to question a witness after he became exasperated at the verbal sparring of Fuller and Isidor Wissel, of counsel for the impeachment managers.

Fuller's testimony was regarded by Attorneys for the managers as a crushing blow to the defence. It virtually took away Mr. Sulzer's main supports. It was said in November, 1910, at the time of the election, Mr. Sulzer held 200 shares of Big Four, 200 shares of American Smelting and 100 shares of Southern Pacific. Mr. Fuller testified.

In March, 1910, Mr. Sulzer bought 100 shares of Big Four stock on margin at 50. Three months later Harris & Fuller sent Sulzer $4,000 on a certificate for 100 shares of Big Four. Mr. Sulzer had bought the stock on ten points margins, but declines continued until it went to 40. Mr. Fuller's firm advanced the Governor $14,012.50 on the stock, and these advances, coupled with the decline, wiped out the account.

On July 26 last the Governor had a debit account of $22,694. With the firm while his holdings then had a market value of $28,800.

Mr. Fuller's testimony was interrupted while Chester C. Platt, private secretary to Mr. Sulzer, was called to the stand to identify a letter written by the Governor on September 5, 1913, to a "Dr. Brown." Just before Mr. Platt took the stand it was learned that a summons had been sent to former State Democratic Chairman W. J. Connors, in Hot Springs, Ark., to appear before the court and testify as to Sulzer's relations with Hugh J. Reilly, the contractor, who did a great amount of work for the Cuban government while Mr. Sulzer was in Congress.

In November, 1910, Mr. Fuller said, when his testimony was resumed, 200 shares of American Smelting were bought for Mr. Sulzer.

Deny Peace Is Near in the Mackay Suit

Await Coming of Taft Who Has Seen Husband in Europe.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Instead of reconciliation between Dr. Joseph A. Blake and his wife, who is suing Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay for $1,000,000, alleging alienation of her husband's affections, it is announced that the only thing keeping back the actual filing of the papers in court is the absence from the city of Henry W. Taft of counsel for Mrs. Mackay.

Mr. Taft has left Europe, where he spent the Summer and where he is supposed to have had conferences with Mr. Mackay, and is expected to reach this city this evening. Within a few days Governor Hughes, Justice Hendrick and George Gordon Battle, attorney for Mrs. Blake, will have a talk with him, and then, unless there is some new development, the suit will take on legal form through the presentation of the papers in the county clerk's office.

To Chicago in 15 Minutes, His Dream

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Robert Bruce Gordon, who gave his home at Home Monts, and said he is living at the Waldorf-Astoria, was sent to Bellevue Hospital for ten days' observation. He told the Magistrate that he has invented a railroad that will carry passengers from New York to Chicago in fifteen minutes, and if it is taken up by financiers he will build a road equally fast from Chicago to San Francisco.

RENEW POISON HUNT IN EATON SLAYING CASE

With the trial of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, widow of Rear-Admiral Joseph O. Eaton, whom she is accused of poisoning, but two weeks away, the State authorities are renewing their attempts to obtain a case against the woman who has been languishing in the Plymouth County Jail all Summer.

State Officer Scott, with other officials who have been investigating the case, is back a new search to find the place where the poison with which it is alleged that Mrs. Eaton killed her husband was procured. The search has centered around Boston, and the drug stores in and around Scollay square were the last ones to be questioned, it is said.

Fifty-four jurors, from whom the twelve who will try Mrs. Eaton will be picked, have been chosen. The trial began this week, from today.

The entire was drawn for the Superior Court by the Brookline Board of Aldermen. One of the Representatives Walter F. Russell and Jesse P. Buckley, as well as a number of prominent manufacturers and merchants. The list follows:

Crisis Is Near in Illness of Angell

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 30.—Dr. James B. Angell, president emeritus of Michigan University, who is lying dangerously ill of pneumonia at his home, was considered worse today and a crisis was approaching. While both lungs are affected, it is the left side that is giving most trouble.

Dr. Smith Asks Bail in Death Trial Case

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 30.—The failure of the jury, after forty-four hours, to reach a verdict in the second trial of Dr. Arthur B. Smith, charged with the murder of his first wife, Mrs. Florence Cartleer Smith, may result in his being freed on bonds.

Mrs. JOHN P. MANNING,

who will wed Walter Bowne as soon as his and her own divorces are made absolute.

Mrs. Manning to Wed Bowne Upon Divorce

Latter Will Gain Freedom from Wife Who Also Eloped.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Adele Taylor Manning, against whom John Pearse Manning of Flushing instituted proceedings for divorce last December, will, according to rumor, become Mrs. Walter Bowne.

This will take place, it is said, just as soon as the Manning decree becomes final and all legal formalities fulfilled in Bowne's divorce from his wife, who is in the Far East with J. Laurence Mott, third son of the millionaire iron founder.

Mrs. Manning is living with her four months-old baby at No. 610 West One Hundred and Thirteenth street.

If the contemplated wedding takes place it will add another incident to the now famous Bowne-Mott-Manning tangle. In June, 1912, one month after Mott eloped with Bowne's wife, Frances Hewitt Bowne, the musical comedy singer, Manning, who is a wealthy broker, entered the Hotel Martinique and found his wife dining with Bowne. There was a facile encounter.

Government to End Meat Famine

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The United States is turning its vast Indian reservations into grazing grounds to ward off the meat famine by paying $400,000 for cattle to be grazed and bred for market on the Crow Indian reservation, Montana.

MILLIONAIRE NOW AT WORK WITH FELONS

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Thomas Mott Osborne or "Thomas Brown," as he is known behind the walls of Auburn prison, entered upon his second day of jail term that differs in no respect from that of his fellows except that his is self-imposed and will be terminated when he tires of it.

Mr. Osborne is a millionaire philanthropist and, among other things, chairman of the State Commission on Prison Reform, and he believes in getting a first hand idea of conditions in the New York jails. He was admitted, dressed and lives exactly like a convicted felon. Instead of a fine home with plenty of servants, well tailored clothing, good bed, well served, and all the general comforts of the rich, Osborne, or "Brown," which is his jail alias, has the run of a cell near to the death house, where half a dozen men are awaiting execution, that measures exactly three feet six inches in width, is seven feet long and the same in height. There is a bed folding against the wall, and when this is let down Osborne has exactly six inches leeway. He is dressed in the gray garb the State provides and which is offensive to fit any and all sizes of humanity, with a great pair of coarse brogans over the toughest and heaviest of cotton socks.

Here is Osborne's day, that does not vary:

5:30 A. M.—Rises and breakfasts on bread and black coffee in the cell.

6 A. M.—Works in the basket shop with other new inmates, assorting straw stock.

12 M.—Dinner in the mess hall; bean soup, boiled ham, pickles, boiled potatoes and coffee.

12:30 P. M.—Back to the shop again.

5 P. M.—Marches to cell again and locked in for the night. Supper of bread and coffee shoved through wicket.

9 P. M.—All in bed.

Osborne has barred himself completely from the world and will have no chance to speak with anyone until he says the word for his release. In Auburn the rule of silence prevails. Friends are much interested as to how long he will keep up the ordeal.

Hurt in Leap from Window.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Sept. 30.—Hector Bearcer, thirty-five, was taken to the Weber Hospital today suffering from injuries to his legs and back, received, it is claimed, when he jumped from the window of his home, No. 16 Cross street.

DAUGHTER OF KAISER ON OUTS WITH HUSBAND

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—Another matrimonial storm in royal circles follows close on the heels of the reported estrangement of King Manuel and his young bride. The pair involved are the Kaiser's only daughter, Princess Victoria Luise, and her husband, Prince Ernst of Cumberland, five months wed.

The Princess said to be ill in health, will return to her home at Rathenow, it is declared today, as soon as her husband returns from Gmunden.

The rumors of a quarrel are persistent, yet denied by the bride's intimate friends. They admit, however, that hopes of a visit from the stork have been abandoned, owing to the state of Victoria's health.

The German Empress has made several hurried visits to her daughter. The recurring illnesses of the Princess were assigned as the cause.

Another story is to the effect that she is now so much improved in health that a visit to the Riviera or Corfu, as was at one time proposed by the Empress, may not be necessary. The physique of the Princess was never robust. At one time she was reported to be deaf and dumb.

The political question resulting from the union of the Kaiser's daughter with the son of the Duke of Cumberland is reported to be causing much irritation to the government.

Electrical Workers Elect F. J. McNulty

After a vigorous contest, Frank J. McNulty of Chicago, formerly of Boston, was elected president and C. P. Ford, Schenectady, N. Y., secretary-treasurer of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, who have been in convention at the Revere House since September 15. It was voted to hold the next meeting at San Francisco in 1915, but this will go to a referendum vote for final action.

Twentieth Century Club.

Professor George H. Blakeslee of Clark University will address the Twentieth Century Club at its first meeting after Summer, at their rooms, No. 3 Joy street, Saturday, at 1 p. m. He will give his impressions of South America.

PRINCESS AUGUSTA VICTORIA,

bride of deposed King Manuel of Portugal, who declares she will not live with him.

Orphan Boy Is Ship's Stowaway

Find German Lad Aboard Koln, on Her Maiden Voyage.

Fifteen-year-old Gerhard Gerder, an orphan boy, who was apprenticed to a carpenter in Germany, was a stowaway on the North German Lloyd steamer Koln, which arrived here today on her maiden trip. He was discovered aboard by passengers. The immigration authorities took him in charge.

The Koln had ninety-nine cabin and 61 steerage passengers for Boston, and twelve cabin and thirty steerage passengers for New Orleans.

Captain Heinrich Mayer of the Koln expressed himself as well pleased with the maiden trip of his ship. He said the company was satisfied with the number of passengers, and thought it looked well for the Boston service.

REPORT BRIDE WON'T LIVE WITH KING MANUEL

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The young and blooming German bride, whom Manuel, dethroned King of Portugal, took less than a month ago, vows she will not live with him.

Such is the painful but persistent report that comes from Munich, where the crownless queen lies in a hospital. The report is the more mysterious because no reason is given for the bride's strange determination. Yet even her words to a close friend are quoted:

"I am firmly decided to leave my husband. Under no circumstances shall I continue to live with him."

Not a word of explanation has come from any official source. The only statements have dealt with the progress of the influenza with which, they declare, the princess suffers.

The Die Post, of strong monarchial and conservative tendencies, says:

"The reports appearing in different journals that the princess will not return to her husband are not confirmed. Indeed But it will be a mistake to reject them off hand as untrue."

The princess will be sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital by the middle of October, it is expected. Then she will go to the castle of her father, Prince William of Hohenlhern of Sigmaringen. Manuel may accompany her for appearance sake and then go to the villa he has engaged at Richmond, near London.

Child's False Face Is Mask of Death

Horses Scared, Knock Boy Down and Wheels Crush Him.

NEW BRITAIN, Ct., Sept. 30.—Walking up and down in front of his home in Broad street five-year-old Joseph Doubeck was having great fun showing passers-by the red mask he had bought for a couple of cents. When anybody seemed frightened by his hideous appearance, little Joe shrieked with glee.

Along came a pair of horses drawing a heavy wagon. The driver went into a store. Joe wondered if he could scare the horses with his mask; so he danced out in front of them. He did scare them. The animals bolted, trampled on the boy and dragged the wheels over his body. The horses were caught, but Joe, with the mask still partly covering his face, lay dead.

2000 NEGROES MARCHED PAST LYNCHED BOYS

HARRISTON, Miss., Sept. 30.—Silent from fear of the living, not awe of the dead, 2,000 negroes, comprising practically all of the black population of this vicinity were compelled to pass in line before the coffins in which lay two members of their race who were lynched. The lynched men were the two Jones brothers who started the race riot that resulted in a total of twelve deaths and sixteen wounded.

Two more of the wounded, one a negro, died, and three men, a white and two blacks, are in a critical condition.

The whole countryside is still armed.

Charged with being the prime plotter, Maggie Jones, mother of Willis and Walter Jones, was arrested at Port Gibson, twenty miles away. A well organized posse is somewhere between here and Port Gibson and is said to have sworn to lynch the woman. She is charged with having bought the cocaine that crazed her sons.

WILEY VICTOR OVER DOPERS SAYS CASSIDY

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the father of the pure food movement, was forced out of his office as Chief of the Federal Bureau of Chemistry March 15, 1912. The food dopers and plotters thought by their actions to discredit him. Mr. Cassidy asks you to consider how the dopers blundered. Today Dr. Wiley's ideas have been generally adopted and he is a more potent force for pure food than ever.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

"You can't keep a good man down," runs the old saw. The result of the food dopers' war on Dr. Wiley furnishes a striking example of its truth.

After twenty-nine years spent in the service of the government championing the cause of pure food against some of the most powerful interests Dr. Wiley was forced, through self respect, to resign. The interests which had obstructed him in his every step gloated over what they believed his downfall.

But they had blundered and they didn't know it. They thought their villification and abuse had snowed the faithful servant under. They rejoiced that their Remson board, their refectee board and their Solicitor McCabe were at last free to protect their fraudulent interests.

How they misjudged the public! Today the ideas for which Dr. Wiley fought unceasingly and unflinchingly are accepted throughout the land.

Won in Long Fight.

Benzoate of soda as a preservative is discredited by all the principal honest food houses. Saccharin has been banished. Sulphate of copper is laboed and alum is in disfavor although used here and there by dishonest dealers.

Dr. Wiley lost his great fight on the adulteration of whiskies. It took a President of the United States to do it. Yet the public today has its own ideas on the purity of certain brands.

After twenty-three years continual fighting Dr. Wiley succeeded in causing the passage of the National Food and Drugs Act. When he saw the interests who wanted to sell adulterated foods to the public were, through the aid of President Taft, swiftly nullifying the intent and purposes of the act, he resigned.

Previously he had been ordered to refrain from telling the public his own ideas on what laws were needed to assure a supply of pure food.

But fortunately for Dr. Wiley, the food dopers blundered better than they knew. Immediately he was forced out of the bureau, a larger field of usefulness opened to him.

He accepted and is now conducting a pure food department in Good Housekeeping Magazine where he talks with hundreds of thousands as against a small official circle in the government service. He is one of the most widely sought men in the country for the lecture platform.

Ideas Spread Broadcast.

He has spread his pure food ideas North and South, East and West. He entered the government service at a salary of $2,500 a year. For a brief period before resigning he was drawing a salary of $5,000.

Today his financial rewards are many times the niggardly reward the government gave him for his years of service. And instead of association with a coterie of hostile officials he is reaping the reward of his long and faithful service in the heartfelt gratitude of a grateful country.

And what must be more pleasing to him even than his freedom from official dictation, his removal from financial worries for the declining years of his life, is that the ideas he fought for almost single handed and alone are now an important part of the nation's knowledge.

How almost prophetic the words contained in his statement at the time of his resignation. "I believe I can find opportunity for more effective service to the work which is nearest my heart, namely, the pure food and drug propaganda, as a private citizen than I could any longer do in my late position."

Strike Threatens New Haven Railroad

HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 30.—A meeting of the New Haven road engineers is to be held next Sunday in the East Hartford yards to vote on the question of a strike. It is said bar today that unless General Manager Hards accedes to modified the new efficiency rule the vote will be unanimous for a strike.

MILL WAR IS REVEALED BY MAN'S ARREST

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 29.—John Shippee, a millworker, was today arrested, after an investigation by Burns detectives, charged with attempting to set fire to the Marino Mills in the Annex district, September 10.

Back of the arrest, it is alleged, lies a tremendously sensational story of business warfare—of the attempt of one big mill unit to cripple another's business. Secret formulas and secret mill equipment figure in the story.

The arrest of the "man higher up," said to be connected with a rival mill, is expected tonight. Shippee, according to the Burns men, has made a full confession.

The story back of the arrest of Shipee is told thus:

The Marino Mill is one of the seven owned by a corporation of which former Senator Henry Josiyn is the head—a million-dollar concern.

Secret Lacquer.

The Josiyn mills make shoe strings and corset lacings. Two sorts of six mills is sent to the Marino Mill for the finishing touches.

The Marino Mill has a secret lacquer which is used on the outer tips of the laces, and which makes it possible for the Josiyn mills to make a big profit.

Shippee was employed in the Marino Mill. He was approached, it is charged, by a member of a rival concern, and offered $25 in cash and a job for life if he would steal the formula of this secret lacquer.

He came to Boston and bought a quantity of the lacquer, but it was of different quality from that used in the Marino mills, and so he stole—the Burns men say—a can of lacquer from the mill and delivered it to the man who had hired him.

It is alleged that Attorney Barney of the firm of Barney & Lee, representing the Josiyn interests, went to the man's office, and in his presence, seized the can of lacquer and took it away.

Claim He Was Hired.

Following that, the Burns men say, the rival milliman hired Shippee to set fire to the Marino mill.

Shippee on the night of September 10, it is charged, went to the Marino mill and set two candles in bundles of waste, covering them with hoses so the watchman would not see them.

The mill is protected by two automatic fire-extinguisher systems—one secret. The other system had been disconnected by some person bribed, it is alleged in confidence. But the secret system was in working order, and put out the fire saving the mill.

The Burns men immediately began an investigation, and Shippee's arrest was the result.

Shippee is charged with attempted incendiarism. The Burns men say he has confessed, and that the man who prompted him will be arrested tonight.

SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

Two Women Tell How They Escaped the Surgeon's Knife by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn.—"For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for 'female troubles.'" —MRS. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Baltimore, Md.—"My troubles began with the loss of a child, and I had hemorrhages for four months. The doctors said an operation was necessary, but I dreaded it and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The medicine has made me a well woman and I feel strong and do my own work."—MRS. E. RICHKING, 1260 Sargent St., Baltimore, Md.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

D. D. D. Opens New Era in Cure of Skin Diseases

Professor Budlong's case of eczema was known to almost every hospital and physician of prominence throughout the State of Connecticut. His letter is another interesting demonstration of what is being accomplished by the famous specific D. D. D. Prescription.

"It may be of interest to you to know that your life-giving preparation, D. D. D. Prescription has been of incalculable value to me. I was covered with eczema from head to foot when I began using your remedies. I could get no relief, although I tried a thousand means. I applied two bottles of the Prescription; a cure was effected in a very short time, in less than a month."

Sing Melodies on Wellesley Steps

College Girls Take up Popular Autumnal Feature.

Autumnal step singing has begun at Wellesley. Every Monday and Friday evening until the snow flies, the senior class will take its place on the steps lately occupied by the girls of '13, singing in choral melodies. Miss Marion Mulford of Wayne, Pa., is the senior choir leader. Miss Margaret Griffin of Malden leads the juniors, and Miss Edith Jones of Los Angeles, Cal., the sophomore class.

The honor of singing on the steps belongs alone to the senior class, the juniors and sophomores standing on opposite sides. The step singing is reckoned by the girls as one of the most attractive features of college life.

Recruits to the college class interested in vocal music are made from among the step singers.

4 Arrests in Row Over Phone Bill

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—A hot dispute over a telephone bill has led to so much friction between Alfred Hand, a stock broker, and Oscar E. Konkle, the landlord of the apartment house at No. 3080 Broadway, that the police have been called in four times within the last forty-eight hours. The favorite charge is disorderly conduct.

Elliott Attends Old Colony Meeting

Howard Elliott, the new president of the New Haven Road, attended his first annual meeting of the Old Colony railroad today, taking the place of his predecessor, Charles S. Mellen. FOSS INSISTS UPON 'EXPENSES' DETAILS of Friday last. I am glad to know that you will meet in such a comprehensive way the requirements of the present railroad situation. I am glad to learn also that the total disbursements under the "personal service" heading are materially less than the totals inferred by the press. But in the large totals, the public will be anxious to learn the nature of the services for which any sums whatever were paid, and I feel confident that you will do all in your power to satisfy them.

Public attention was drawn to the newspaper accounts mainly because certain large sums were said to have been paid under the general designation of legal department to individuals who are not recognized as attorneys-at-law, or as registered legislative agents. It is upon this point, rather than the accuracy of the total expenditures as printed, that public notice is now fixed.

The point is to determine, as I said in my letter to Chairman Morland, not only the sums disbursed, but who received them, to whom they were disbursed, at what dates and for what considerations.

This is the main issue, and I am confident that it will receive your undivided attention in due course.

Very truly yours,
EUGENE N. FOSS,
Governor.

President Elliott's Letter.

President Elliott, in his letter to Governor Foss, says, in part, in regard to the report to the Public Service Commission:

"Under the heading of 'Other Expenses' there are shown for the seven months, from December 1, 1912, to June 30, 1913, details of various expenditures, of which all but about $70,000 appear upon the face of the statement to have been for publicity, and show payments for advertising in about newspapers all over New England, such as the widely published advertisement, 'Said from Boston.' There are no charges to be made illegal or concealed expenditures.

"This balance of $70,000 is made up of charges for different things, such as payments to trust companies as trustees of mortgages, contributions to fairs and expositions, reserves outside of right of way, payments for chartered accountants, attorneys' fees and expenses of directors' meetings and expenses in connection with the sale of Boston & Albany equipment trust certificates."

This was President Elliott does not consider unusual, considering the territory served.

"The total amount standing on the company's books on June 30, 1913, for the seven months called for by the Commission, in the account of 'Other Expenses' under the general classification of 'General Expenses,' was $101,553.39. The details of expenditures given to the press, however, make a considerably larger sum, and for the following reason:

"The examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission was of the opinion that a large part of the expenditures for advertising charged during the fiscal years to this account of 'Other Expenses' should be classified under the head of 'Traffic Advertising' and transferred to the account of 'Traffic Expenses.' It was a matter of no practical moment to the company to what account these expenditures should be charged, therefore in deference to the views of the Interstate Commerce Commission these expenditures were transferred before the books were closed for June, from 'General Expenses' to 'Traffic Expenses,' since the credit to the account of 'Other Expenses' thus occasioned, exceeded the debits for June, there was a net credit on the books for this month of June of $117,968.16.

"To the full detailed statement of General Expenses submitted to the Public Service Commission was attached for their convenience, a summary by months, and I enclose a copy of this summary of the account headed 'Other Expenses.'

Black Figures and Red.

"You will note that for each of the first six months there is given in black figures a total of the debits to this account for the month. For the month of June a net credit of $117,968.16 is shown, and in accordance with the usual practice of bookkeepers, is given in red figures. If you will add the black figures, representing the debits, and from the total subtract the red figures, representing the credit, you will get the final balance of the account as it stands on the company's books for the seven months' period and as shown in the statement filed with the Public Service Commission, of $101,553.39.

"If, on the other hand, you do what the representative of the Boston Journal apparently did, and add the red figures to the black figures, you get the Boston Journal's total of $337,460.71. Anyone who treats the summary in this way makes an error of twice the amount of the credit item shown in red figures, or twice $117,968.16, that is to say, $235,936.32.

"Of course, I have no personal information about any of these transactions. I shall be very glad, indeed, to furnish to you, or to the Commission, any information that I can about these matters and to any statement in regard to the payments to Mr. Mellen, under agreements made at the time of his resignation, which agreements were made prior to my being a member of the Board or an officer of the company and without knowledge on my part."

ASK INNES TO EXPLAIN HIS SHARE IN 'EXPENSE'

The following letter bearing on the payment by the New Haven of more than $16,000 to the law firm of which Attorney Charles H. Innes is a member, was sent out to the newspapers:

Channing H. Cox, Esq.

91 Westland avenue, Boston.

Dear sir: The recent disclosures that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad during the last session of the Legislature paid a total of more than $16,000 to the law firm of which Charles H. Innes, your campaign manager, is a member, have doubtless surprised you. We feel, as of course you do, that only a prompt and explicit explanation of the purposes for which the money was paid can prevent misunderstanding of the transaction and we ask you to join with the Governor of the Commonwealth and other public-spirited citizens in urging upon Mr. Innes the necessity of such an explanation.

We feel that the payments of New Haven money to Mr. Innes were for services for actual legal services, as they were not included by him in the statement of the expenditures of the money he received for lobbying during session. At the same time, candor compels us to say that we may give rise to misunderstanding and divert attention from current issues of the greatest moment, upon which you and we alike, as candidates of opposing parties, base our appeal for the suffrages of the people.

We urge you to speak to Mr. Innes. He is your chief supporter in the present campaign and your word cannot but have weight with him.

Furthermore, as the floor leader of the Republican majority in the House at the time of the passage of the Western Trolley Merger Bill, the Washburn Bill and other legislation granting large powers to the New Haven Railroad, we feel that you have a peculiar right to demand a detailed statement of the relations between the New Haven road and the acknowledged head of your own party in the district you represent.

In view of the present State-wide interest in the legislative methods of the New Haven Railroad we are sure that we only anticipate the wishes in giving copies of this letter to the Boston newspapers and we are equally confident that these newspapers will give full publicity to Mr. Innes' explanation, whenever he sees fit to make one.

Very truly yours,

M. DE BERNOFF CALLS BOSTON BRAINS OF U. S.

Michael de Bernoff, Russian nobleman and globe trotter, plans a visit to Boston next Friday. He is today in New York, but promises to lecture here Friday at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. He has strong opinions. Here are some of them:

Boston is the brains of America.

New York may be—I hesitate to say so—the stomach.

American men are very ugly as regards their appearance.

American women are Venuses—the most beautiful in the world.

Aside from beauty, woman isn't man's equal and never can be.

Men are the best cooks, the best milliners and the best dressmakers.

Your American wives travel alone. That's dangerous. Wives don't do this in Russia.

In America I have met more grass widows than I have real widows and real wives.

The set of American women who marry foreign noblemen have never impressed me favorably.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the quality newspaper.

RECORD CROWD AT OPENING OF BROCKTON FAIR

Forty thousand children and 20,000 adults were present at the opening of the Brockton Fair today. It was the largest first-day attendance since the big fair was started, forty years ago.

Every child in this great army was admitted to the grounds free. There also were special prizes awarded the little ones winning places in the games held for their amusement.

Governor Foss' daughters, Eleonora Sears, Dorothy Forbes and Katherine Elkins, all ardent horse lovers, are exhibitors in the horse show at the fair this year, their entries forming a prominent part in the field of 300 horses exhibited. Reginald C. Vanderbilt and Alfred G. Vanderbilt are among the other entries.

The dairy show also is a record-breaker, with a keen rivalry on between Thomas W. Lawson, F. Lothrop Ames and Fred F. Field.

Five thousand birds are entered in the poultry show portion of the fair, in which the AMERICAN has put up a valuable prize, which makes it the largest poultry show ever held in this section of the country.

TO PUT CHARGE OF BRUTALITY UP TO O'MEARA

Specific charges of brutality are to be laid before Police Commissioner O'Meara against the police of Station 11, Dorchester, it was announced today, in the case of John S. Edwards of No. 15 Whitney street. Edwards, who is in a critical condition with a fractured skull at the City Hospital, was first declared by the police to be intoxicated when he was found unconscious last Saturday night.

The family of the young man also accused the police guilty of delay in sending for a physician. Alfred Edwards, a brother, says the police told him his brother was "dead drunk" and that it was only after vigorous protests from members of the Catholic Club said his habits were clean and that he was temperate.

It Will Pay You Well

to devote a few minutes each day to the pleasant task of solving the daily puzzle pictures in the Boston American's New

Picture Puzzle Contest

$4,000 Cash Prize First Prize $1,000

Open to All. No Book to Buy. Start Now.

If you have not yet started to test your wits in the Boston American's latest Picture Puzzle Contest, this is as good a time as any other to begin. You can start today, tomorrow or any time, but if you delay you will be missing a fascinating daily diversion.

Now, Today, is the best time to get interested and this is the way to do it:

Each day for 85 days (commencing Sunday, September 21) the Boston American will print a puzzle picture representing authors and their works, poets, plays, proverbs, battles, universities, buildings, inventors, actors, books, cities, and public men and women. $4,000 in cash prizes will be awarded to the 155 competitors who secure the largest number of correct answers according to the rules of the contest which appear each week in the Sunday American.

That's all there's to it except that it costs nothing to take part in this competition—there is no book to buy or other expense of any kind necessary. Lack of familiarity with the subjects used need bar no one from competing because there will be printed each week in the Sunday American an official list of names or titles, among which will be found the correct answers to the pictures to be used during the week commencing with this Sunday list publication.

There will be no guide book to buy—just refer to this Sunday list each week and you will have all the information necessary.

For the benefit of those who are just starting to solve the pictures, the American will reprint in next Sunday's American, October 5, a complete list of the names and titles from which pictures Number 1 to 14 have been selected, as well as the complete list from which next week's pictures, 15 to 21, will be chosen.

Today's picture represents a proverb. Examine it carefully and see if it does not recall to your memory a famous household saying. When you have found the answer, clip the picture and coupon from the paper, write your answer on the coupon and save it. Then watch for tomorrow's picture and do the same thing. And so on from day to day.

Get busy right now! It is interesting, it is instructive, and last but not least, there is no good reason why you should not make it profitable to yourself. $1,000 in cash, remember, is the first prize and there are scores of other big cash prizes, so that it rests with yourself as to just how profitable it should be for you.

Glance down the prize list and get busy right now—today, for the big $1,000 cash prize.

BOY IS SLAIN WHILE CARING FOR STRAY CAT

A boy's brave fight to save a stray cat he had befriended led to the slaying of John Scannell, one of the eight children.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Scannell of Cambridge, and to the arraignment in the Cambridge District Court today of five men on a charge of murder.

The story of how young Scannell came by his death is one of the most pathetic told the Cambridge police in a long time.

Young "Tommy" O'Connor of No. 61 Bristol street, Cambridge, was standing on Portland street in that city when he noticed a grayish mongrel cat dart across the street in his direction. A few feet the feline meowed plaintively. Kindhearted "Tommy" picked the feline up, and the two became good friends.

Then came a sudden interruption.

"Hey, what's this?" called one of a party of five men on the sidewalk. The five came up and poked fun at the boy and the cat. Then without a warning, one of the five grabbed the cat by the neck and using Kitty like a football kicked her into the street. A second man caught "Tommy" by the collar and swung him about so violently that it nearly made him dizzy.

Bystanders rushed up and a fight began. Fists and stones were freely used. When the blows were thickest, young Scannell approached on his way to mourn at the home of a dead friend. The police said they didn't know just how Scannell got into the crowd. Some someone shouted "murder" and young Scannell's body fell heavily to the street.

Past the lad's body scurried the cat which had been the innocent cause of the fight. Young Scannell died in the police ambulance, having been stabbed just under the heart.

In court today, William Kaminski, Charles Sivezinski, James Waserlenki, Paul Hedrich and Joseph Zaltuski, all of Cambridge, were arraigned and were held without bail for a hearing Monday.

HUSBAND BEAT WIFE WITH ONE DAY OLD BABY

Little Mary Gordon, bright-eyed, blonde-haired, neatly dressed, stood before Judge Fallon in the South Boston police court today to testify against her father.

"My father came home drunk last night and he went right in to my mother, who was in bed with the baby, and started to beat her," she began.

"How old was the baby?" interrupted the Judge.

"One day," came the reply, and the judge and spectators looked in amazement at the prisoner. "And then I grabbed the baby, for I thought he was going to kill both the baby and mother and run out with it. My father chased mother out of bed and around the house and she jumped out of a window to keep from being killed. We all of us stayed all night next door."

Judge Fallon turned to Gordon: "Have you anything to say?"

"Are you telling the truth, Mary?" asked the father.

"Yes, you know I am," came the quick reply.

"Three months in the House of Correction for being drunk and nine months for assault and battery on your wife," said with this Judge Fallon ended the little drama. Gordon appealed.

The prisoner lives at No. 97 Fifth street and has six children in addition to the new born babe.

Electrical Workers Grant Affiliation with A. F. of L.

The international convention of the A. F. of L. Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has granted membership to telephone operators and women employes of electrical shops.

By the plan, a women's department of the international is established and all women's unions are to have charters of their own and transact their own local affairs.

It was also decided that the women members would pay a per capita tax of 30 cents a month, instead of 40 cents a month, as recommended for the men's unions under the new laws.

The women members were voted eligible to the minimum death benefit of the international. For voting in international conventions the women's unions will have one vote for each two members.

Guild, and at his death the principal goes to Radcliffe College.

WOMAN PLANNED $3,000 BREAK IN STETSON HOUSE

A woman, possibly a former servant, with an accurate knowledge of the family's habits, the general plan of the house and what it contained, is today said to have engineered the break in the home of James H. Stetson at No. 40 School street, Quincy, which was robbed of $3,000 worth of jewelry and other valuables during the absence of the family.

Several persons have come under suspicion since the robbery was discovered, but they have gradually been eliminated and the hunt has simmered down to a woman who was friendly with the Stetson family for years and her male companion. A description of both has been sent out on circulars and a country-wide search is under way.

The police refuse to make known the name of the woman and secrecy surrounds the details of the robbery. It is believed the pair used an automobile and may possibly have paid more than one visit to the house, confident the break would not be discovered until the members of the Stetson family returned from their Summer residence. The owner of the house is president of a Boston dry goods firm.

The plunder ranged from imported lace curtains and Persian portiers to family plate and prized jewelry. Parisian gowns which had never been worn, lingerie valued well into the hundreds of a $1,000 seal sacque vanished with other articles.

That the pair also had a fondness for delicacies was evidenced by the absence of liquors, ten pounds of tea, valued at $1 per pound, and canned dainties imported from foreign lands. A quantity of choice cigars was also carried away.

Instead he eloped to Canada with Marie L. Freese and Mrs. Melcher will be deported as an undesirable alien.

DEPORT WOMAN FRIEND OF MISS FREESE'S PRINCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Clara Melcher, former Viennese laundress, who came to this country to marry Prince Stanislaus Sulkowski, was deported today on the liner Kron Prinz Wilhelm as an undesirable alien.

Mrs. Melcher declared that she came to America at the request of Prince Stanislaus, but when her arrived she found he had already married Miss Marie Louise Freese, a Los Angeles heiress. Mrs. Melcher tried to have the Prince arrested as a "white slaver," but failed.

"They brought me from Los Angeles in the company of a murderer, a procurer and six other criminals," said Mr. Melcher "while Prince Sulkowski, who has ruined my life, was travelling in luxury with the heiress he ran away with. For one thing, I thank God that he saved me from harming either of them.

"Soon after I arrived Sulkowski's manner began to change. Then one day he told me he could not marry me as he was in love with Miss Marie Louise Freese, who, he said, was very beautiful and rich.

"They offered me money to say nothing when I charged the prince with bringing me to America for immoral purposes. Miss Freese's father drove me away when I tried to tell her. Then when Sulkowski and Miss Freese eloped and escaped the authorities by crossing the frontier into Canada I felt it was all over."

Ministers' Club Is Latest at Harvard

Harvard has had athletic clubs and other sorts of organizations, and now it has a ministers club. It's the Cotton Mather Club, which has invited all Harvard men who expect to go into the ministry to join. The club is being conducted under the auspices of the Phillips Brooks House and has just begun its season's work.

Malden Building Flooded by Tank

A defective water tank on the second floor of the Odd Fellows' building in Malden square flooded the building, damaging the stock of the Kelley dry goods store $1,500 and the building itself $1,000. The miniature flood was discovered early today by Patrolman John Enwright, who saw little rivers pouring from windows and doors.

NOW GET READY TO PAY TAX ON YOUR INCOME

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The income tax feature of the tariff bill has reached its final form and Representative Hull of Tennessee, who framed this feature of the bill, has made a statement explanatory of the complicated provisions.

Every citizen of the United States, whether living at home or abroad, must pay an annual tax of one per cent. upon all net incomes over $3,000 per year, if single, and over $4,000 if married, with an exemption added for larger incomes. The bill will go into effect at once, being levied during the first year only from March 1, 1913, to December 31, and these taxes must be paid by June 30 next.

The general mode of calculating net income will be to charge all earnings of every sort and income from every source except the return of the principal of life insurance by death or otherwise. From this gross income the net is arrived at by deducting the necessary cost of doing business and a allowance for depreciation thereon by act of sleet not compensated by insurance, bad debts, taxes and interest; the tax upon which has been paid at the source. These are the only deductions allowed, living expenses, money going into betterments and the like are all taxable.

Failure to file a return may be punished by a fine from $2 to $1,000 and a false return by a fine of $2,000 and one year's imprisonment or both.

In addition to the 1 per cent. tax the following is added as the income increases:

From $20,000 to $50,000, 1 per cent.; from $50,000 to $75,000, 2 per cent.; from $75,000 to $100,000, 3 per cent.; from $100,000 to $250,000, 4 per cent.; from $250,000 to $500,000, 5 per cent.; over $500,000, 6 per cent.

Treasury experts estimate that 423,000 persons in the United States will have to pay about $115,000,000 under the income tax law.

"JOSEPH AND HIS BRETHREN" WINS AT BOSTON THEATRE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

Whether you speak of "Joseph and His Brethren" as a spectacular or as a dramatic entertainment you must draw upon superlatives. The splendor of its appointments would have carried Louis N. Parker's play into success at the Boston last evening, even had it lacked the qualities that make good drama. It was a play of astonishing size and bewildering color.

The Book of Genesis gave up much of its best melodrama to serve Mr. Parker's pen, but it was melodrama that throbbed with genuine human interest. Whatever view you may take of the Biblical drama as a theatrical dish, you may be sure that the early chapters of the Good Book deal with days that were ripe with melodrama. They were perilous times and human life was cheap.

"Joseph and His Brethren," as you found it at the Boston last evening, was the biggest dramatic spectacle of years, and it will doubtless remain the most imposing of its type for many seasons to come. The story of Joseph that interested you in your Sunday school days lost none of its splendid romance and color in its journey to the modern stage—in fact its visualization through the medium of the drama added something to its flavor that is missing when you take it in cold type—and without frills. You got the frills last evening.

Made Drama Lively.

The love of Zuleika for Joseph would have made a lively romance if the lady had not been a certain Mrs. Potiphar, whose husband stood high in Egyptian military circles; and if Joseph had been less honorable there would have been no punch and very little melodrama to the play. It was Zuleika who made the drama lively, and as that scorned and angry lady, Pauline Frederick, left nothing to be desired. She was the the passionately cruel Egyptian beauty to the last stitch in her diaphanous gown. Miss Frederick was never out of the picture, and your only wonder was how so beautiful a wife could provide so much misery for her neighbors. One of the most interesting characters in literature, Potipher's wife found herself in competent hands last evening.

Joseph's trials supplied a heavy burden for Brandon Tynan. It was up-hill work all the way, but Mr. Brandon made a good job of it. He was the Joseph you knew in your childhood—the dreamer and prophet. Mr. Tynan's performance was as near flawless as it is possible to accomplish.

Great Scenic Splendor.

In the troublesome home of Jacob you had James O'Neill presiding with a dignity that only comes from years of active experience with the drama. Mr. O'Neill made Jacob a character that was almost too real to belong to the stage. He also gave Pharoah the benefit of his magnificent voice and kingly bearing.

"Joseph and His Brethren" was produced with a wealth of scenic splendor. No play has ever shown greater luxury of color, and in these gorgeous settings the story of Joseph and his people, and Zuleika and her disappointments, were told in fascinating style.

It is a play for all kinds of people.

Colonial Theatre.

"Broadway Jones," which has brought George M. Cohan to Boston on his farewell tour, began its engagement at the Colonial Theatre last evening. "Broadway Jones" is a play of many laughs and sound dramatic situations. It is something of a "back to nature" play, in that its central character moves from the white lights of New York to the less brilliant scenes of a Connecticut town—and finds the change agreeable. Mr. Cohan gives "Broadway Jones" his best talent as a comedian, and as he is also the author of the play his comedy is of the style that has made him and his writings familiar and popular with American play-goers.

A more extended review of "Broadway Jones" will be published in the Thursday AMERICAN.

Globe Theatre.

The bit of the new bill at the Globe theatre yesterday was furnished by Charles Keene and his company in "Sheriff Bob," a western melodrama reduced to tabloid form. Mr. Keene is an actor of experience on the legitimate stage and his skill in characterization had much to do with the success of yesterday's presentation. The balance of the bill was made up of vaudeville of every known variety, arranged to suit the musically inclined as well as those who prefer comedy and thrills. New pictures were also shown during the morning and supper hours.

Bills That Are Announced.

"A Temperance Town" will be Mr. Craig's offering at the Castle Square Theatre next week.

The next attraction at the Shubert will be the Hoffman-Polaire-Richardson triple star bill in a big review.

"Bought and Paid For" will follow "The Five Frankforters" at the Majestic Theatre.

"The Madcap Duchess" will be an early offering at the Colonial Theatre.

"The District Attorney's Wife" will be one of the features in the bill at the Globe next week.

Waldron's Casino.

"The Liberty Girls" began a week's visit at the Casino theatre yesterday and gave two big audiences some lively burlesque. There were enough girls to make things merry, as well as the usual assortment of comedians.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

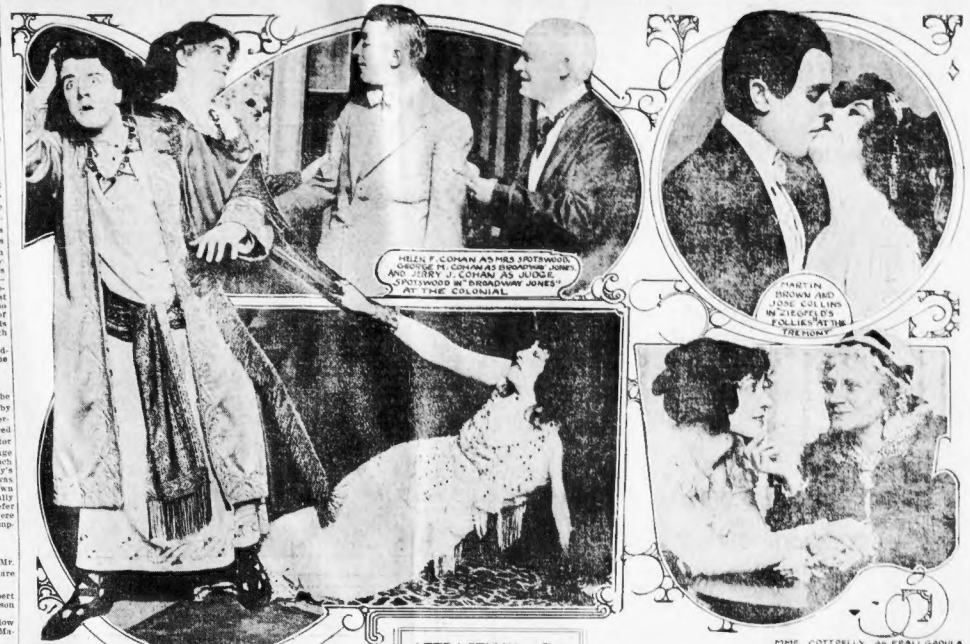
Rose Pitnoff, who breaks swimming records frequently, was the headline attraction at the Bowdoin Square theatre yesterday. There were a dozen other features.

Howard Athenaeum.

Another week with "white hopes" was begun at the Old Howard yesterday. Frank Moran and Joe Jeanette, two aspirants for higher honors in the ring, contributed an athletic sketch called "Training Stunts," as an extra attraction to the regular burlesque show. "The Follies of Pleasure" company did the burlesquing.

Loew's St. James.

Among the new features on the bill at the St. James Theatre yesterday was the Piechiani trio of European comedians. Jenkins and Covert were also seen in a comedy sketch called "Just Married." There were a dozen other acts.



HELEN F. COHAN AS MRS. SPOTSWOOD, GEORGE M. COHAN AS BROADWAY JONES AND JERRY J. COHAN AS JUDGE SPOTSWOOD IN "BROADWAY JONES" AT THE COLONIAL
MARTIN BROWN AND JOSE COLLINS IN ZIEGFELD'S FOLLIES AT THE TREMONT
BRANDON TYNAN AS JOSEPH AND PAULINE FREDERICK AS ZULEIKA IN "JOSEPH AND HIS BRETHREN" AT THE BOSTON
MME. COTTRELLY AS FRAU GADULA AND ALMA BELWIN AS CHARLOTTE IN "THE FIVE FRANKFORTERS" AT THE MAJESTIC

'THE BACHELOR DINNER' HEADS KEITH'S BILL

A one-way musical comedietta of seductive title and the words used to describe "The Bachelor Dinner," which A. Seymour Brown, the song writer, presents as the headliner at Keith's Theatre this week. Mr. Brown is supported by a company of twenty-five merry makers, including John Coleman, Pauline Farrow, William Beardsley, Cecilia Sandow, Alice Gordon, George Walton and Joseph Roberts. Several new songs—the most recent being "At the Gateway of Your Heart"—are introduced by Mr. Brown.

A "big one-act" is "Crack," Reisner and Hearst's name for a conglomeration of music and mirth entitled "It's Only a Play." Ward Bonthron, fresh from "Over the Hudson," or another pair of surmounters, John Knight from the Paris Olympia, sings a number of bewitching songs.

Bert Melrose, the cartoonist, makes his first try to vaudeville this week. A number of other good acts complete the bill.

Gaiety Theatre.

Vanity Fair in new dress and new scenes supplied the entertainment at the Gaiety theatre yesterday. This burlesque show, as usually attracts folk by reason of that element of suggestion to the dances, proved better than ever yesterday and two big audiences laughed at its numerous jokes and enjoyed the fascinating dances and pretty tunes. Billie Ritchie and Bob McAllister, the two stars of the company, originated themselves as comedians who know the value of laughs, and who has the skill to put them over. Two dozen good looking girls made things merry in their own particular way.

Grand Opera House.

"The Belasco Trust" burlesquers made their first appearance of the season at the Grand Opera House yesterday. They were well supplied with girls and comedians.

ATTRACTIONS AT BOSTON THEATRES

'Disraeli' Welcomed On Boston Return

George Arliss and Mrs. Arliss Both in the Cast.

The masterpiece, "Disraeli," with George Arliss still giving his vivid characterization of that picturesque figure of modern history, is back for a four weeks' engagement in the Plymouth Theatre, where it ran for nineteen consecutive weeks last season.

There are several important changes in the cast, but probably the most important is that of the role of Lady Beaconsfield, which is now taken by Mrs. Arliss. Last evening was her first appearance before a Boston audience, and she was well received.

Other new members of the company are Charles Harbury and Henry Carvill. The old favorites are Violet Heming, Margaret Dale, Lelie Reynolds, Merle Quinn, Arthur Eldred, Oscar Aylo and Dudley Digges.

'Five Frankforters' Given at Majestic

Play of Romance and Financial Power Is Cleverly Presented.

The Five Frankforters," a play founded on the history of the five sons who created the immense Rothschild fortune, are at the Majestic, after a run of several years in Continental cities and New York. The play was well received and the cast, a large one for a piece of this sort, is thorough in skill and talent.

The plot rests on a scheme to marry one of the "Frankforters" to the daughter of a duke, as a financial coup. The plan is frustrated by the autocratic old mother, who sidetracks ambition for love and romance.

'School Playgrounds' Given at National

An act which will bring back memories of school days to many Boston people this week is that of the ten little boys and girls at the National Theatre, in their sketch, "On the School Playgrounds." The act is interspersed with songs and dancing, with many new features to recommend it.

Burton and Larner have a dialogue called "Songs and Talk to Kill the Blues." There is plenty of novelty in the act of the latter's partner, pantomime acrobats. John D. Murray, the "man in lavender," is well known here. The Monetta Five are instrumentalists. "Minnie from Minnesota" is the name of a skit in which Mr. and Mrs. Allison appear. It is well worth seeing. Chumings and Gladmore present a clever singing and dancing act, and Mint and Wertz close the bill with a Continental eccentric act.

Plays That Remain.

"The Purple Road" began a new week at the Shubert last evening. It is an operetta with music worth hearing.

"The Conspiracy" continues at the Park, where its thrills and sensations are proving that profit may be found in good melodrama.

"The Sunshine Girl" began its second week at the Dolly last evening. John Sanderson makes an attractive star for Mr. Frohman's pretty musical comedy.

The "Les Miserables" motion pictures are now on their second month at Tremont Temple. They furnish a striking presentation of the famous story.

'BUTTERFLY ON WHEEL' GIVEN AT CASTLE SQ.

"The Butterfly on the Wheel" was very capably presented last night by the stock company at the Castle Square, under the leadership of John Craig.

The theme is that of a flirtatious wife and a husband too much taken with his own affairs, which occasions a sinister appearing situation, in which, of course, the wife is quite innocent, but which leads to the divorce court.

The burden of the play fell upon Mr. Craig as George Admaston, the husband, and William P. Carleton as Roderick Collingwood, who is in love with Mrs. Admaston. Miss Doris Dixson was most attractive and capable.

Others in the cast were Donald Meek as Lord Ellerdine, Augusta Gill as Lady Atwell, Mabel Colcord as Pauline and Frederic Ormonde as Stuart Menzies.

Orpheum Theatre.

Felix Adler, a widely known character actor, headed the new bill at the Orpheum theatre yesterday. Another attractive feature was a tabloid musical comedy called "The Stage Door Johnnies."

Ziegfeld's Follies Open at Tremont

Scoring their usual success Ziegfeld's Follies opened at the Tremont Theatre last night to a packed and appreciative house.

Several new faces were seen in the cast this year, among the most prominent being Jose Collins, Lillian Lorraine, Kelley, Frank Tinney and Nat M. Wills. Possibly the greatest hit of the production, which was, by the way, more sumptuously staged than any preceding production of the Ziegfeld type, was the dance, "Turkish Trottheroes," by Leon Errol and Stella Chatelaine.

The Follies this year are staged in two acts, with thirteen scenes.

A full review of the production will be given by Mr. Nick Young in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

Big Brockton Fair Opens Gates Today

Today at Brockton the fortieth annual fair opened, to continue four days. In many ways the Brockton fair this year is expected to beat all previous records. The racing opened for the largest prizes ever offered there, and the biggest purses ever hung up for a Bremen's muster in New England is also offered this year.

Over 100 special cars with the blue bloods of horsedom have arrived for the big horse show. The entire stable of Miss Katherine Elkins, with those of Reginald and Alfred Vanderbilt, Mrs. Thomas G. Plant, William Zeigler, Miss Vera Hapgood, E. B. McLean of Washington, A. H. Brown and P. A. Clark of New York, W. S. Hanley of Providence, John Moore, Thomas W. Lawson and a host of others, are in Brockton.

Auction Symphony Tickets Today

The auction sale at Symphony Hall today will last less than two hours, as only a few seats—the last eight rows on the floor and the last five rows in the balcony—are to be sold, with an upset price of $10. These tickets are for the public rehearsals.

Your yearly walk

If you are a person of average activity you walk about 1800 miles a year.

That is the distance between New York City and Bismarck, North Dakota—a vast distance, considered as a walk.

If you were deliberately starting out on this 1800-mile trip, would you ask that your way be paved with wood, brick or stone? Would you wear shoes with heels of flinty leather, fastened with iron nails?

No, you would seek the soft turf, and you would see to it that your shoes were equipped with O'Sullivan's Heels of New, Live Rubber.

REMEMBER that you take the equivalent of this walk every year. Nearly all of the time you are obliged to walk on hard floors and pavements, Why not do the wise and sensible thing, and wear O'Sullivan's Heels of easy, springy rubber on your shoes?

They will take up the jolt and jar of walking, and save your spine and nervous system from the shock of pounding your whole weight down on hard leather. They will give your step a buoyant, youthful elasticity, keep your shoes in shape and last twice as long as leather.

O'Sullivan's Heels cost but 50c a pair attached, at all shoemakers. Some shoe manufacturers put them on their shoes before they leave the factory. All shoemakers and shoe dealers will attach them to your shoes when you buy them, or at any other time. If you prefer, send us 35c in stamps, and a tracing of your heel, and we will mail you a pair. O'SULLIVAN RUBBER CO., 131 Hudson Street, New York.

The Delivery System Back of Your Business

More important than cost of delivery is the great question of Reliability of Delivery.

Reliability is the watchword of all successful business. Reliable delivery of goods keeps old customers and makes new customers for both manufacturers and merchandisers.

The Electric Truck stands first in reliability because the Electric Motor that drives it is the most reliable source of mechanical power known. It moves the world's street cars and runs the world's machinery, because it is pre-eminently reliable.

While horses and other machines break down, the Electric Motor keeps on running. Some day it will move ALL the world's commerce. It should move yours NOW, for the power that runs the Electric Motor is the pull of the magnet than which there is nothing more certain in the Universe!

When a customer orders goods he is interested primarily in the certainty and speed of delivery—not in excuses for delays.

*Get Electric Trucks so you can be sure of the Delivery System back of your business.

*Reliability isn't the only argument for Electric Trucks. It's the chief argument, but another goes hand-in-hand with it—Economy. Let any or all of the following manufacturers or agents show you the facts and figures—the actual proof that the Electric Truck combines both Reliability and Economy.

...ank Has Pitched Big League Ball 13 Years

Eddie Is One of the Men Whom Mack Is Depending on in World's Series

By J. W. McCONAUGHY.

Some months ago Mr. Ban Johnson, the fat gaekeeper of the American League, ordered his umpires to jack up the speed of baseball games so as to send the Loyal Public home in time for dinner.

With these instructions in mind an umpire approached a famous veteran pitcher in a game in Philadelphia and suggested that he smoke up a bit and not waste too much time between pitches.

The veteran looked sore. Instead of favoring the umpire with his views as to the size of that official's hat, the activity of his brain and the character of his forebathers, he gently replied:

"See here—I'm getting along toward forty, and I can't hit it up with these youngsters. If I'm going to pitch nine innings I have to take my own time to it."

The umpire was slushed—which is a mighty remarkable thing for an umpire to be. The veteran proceeded with his pitching in his usually deliberate manner, unspurred by further suggestions from the umpire. Furthermore, the story went the rounds of the umpires, and none of them make any comments when the veteran is "taking his own time."

13 Years and Going Yet.

The gentleman who thus spoke to the umpire, and moved him to respect was Eddie Plank of the Athletics, the old out pitcher and the greatest left-hander in baseball. He has been at it thirteen years, every year in the big league, and is at the time.

He came down to the finish of the season but once with a record of having lost more games than he had won. This was the year that the Athletics finished sixth.

Other pitchers—Matty for instance—have been pitching big league baseball as long as Plank, but there are features of the slim Athletic's performance that make his career even more remarkable than Matty's. In the first place he is a left-hander, and left-handers are noted for only short-lived. There is no intention to make this a surgical treatise but any doctor can explain it to you. The constant hard throwing with the left arm has a bad effect on the heart and drives left-handers out of baseball. Plank has long out-lived every other south-paw who started at the time he did.

This is probably due to the fact that he began playing baseball much later in life that the other big leaguers—later than any American boy. It has been reported that he began pitching on the day the battle of Gettysburg was fought, but this is slightly erroneous. It probably arose from the fact that he was born in Gettysburg in 1875, but it was 1895 before he had ever had a baseball in his hands. That's right. Twenty years old before he ever handled a baseball and in America all that time.

It was shortly after his introduction to the national nuisance that young Mr. Plank cast his eyes upon Gettysburg College. In other words, he headed for the fountains of learning about the time that most youths are wiping their lips and backing away. He was twenty-five when he qualified as pitcher for the college team and this explains the fact that he is still hale and hearty. In pitching as in pugilism it is the strain on the boy that eventually crumples up the man.

Foreman Found Plank.

An old-time pitcher, Frank Foreman, was coach of the Gettysburg squad at that time. When Plank came out to try for the team he handed out a few words of what he called "a slant ball." It is what we know now as the puzzling "cross-fire." He stepped way out to the left and shot the ball in at a sharp angle across the plate. It was this wicked method of cutting a baseball as demonstrated by young Mr. Covaleskie that fled the Giants into a Lacoon group on the historic occasion when the Giants nearly won a pennant and didn't.

When Coach Foreman saw the youthful Plank shoot a few of these at the batters he cast himself upon his bosom and wept tears of joy.

"Stick with me, young man," he told him, "and I'll make you the greatest pitcher in the country."

Mack Took the Tip.

Plank was a whirlwind as a college pitcher but the scouting and tipping system of the big leagues was not working as carefully in those days and he passed unnoticed until Foreman went to Boston. One night he hailed Connie Mack in a hotel with these remarks:

"Connie, the best college pitcher in the world is throwing his arm off at Gettysburg. You better grab him while the grabbing is good."

Mr. Mack made a few long strides to the telegraph counter with the result that Plank reported to the club in Washington

Harvard Began Its Secret Drill Today

Only Three Days of Scrimmage This Week—Squad to Rest on Friday

By SYDE LYNES.

TIME the last chance to see the pigskin pastors of Harvard in their daily work out has passed as Head Coach Haughton has got his charges behind lock and key and the watchful eyes of numerous minions of the crimson storm, which the hapless candidates for managerships will hereafter attempt to enter, with uttering awe, in large type. The word was passed out today and the big scrimmage between the varsity and the second team was held behind closed doors where curious eyes could not pry. Practice will be "closed" for the rest of the year.

IN some soon the public are driven out while the animals are fed. This is particularly true in the case of the lions. Coach Haughton is of the opinion that the Harvard gridiron lions, and they eatured this distinction, eat their dinner after their feed while the dope sheet experts of the town, he included, can't agree on this. He looks at it this way, and he is not at all wide of the mark either, that if you have to take pot luck with what is being fed these wild animals. Hence, the opening of the curtain on the rehearsals for the big slaughter at the end of the year.

BIG SCRIMMAGE TODAY.

A BIG scrimmage was down on the program for this afternoon, after the ease that given the men yesterday. In this particular instance we refer to men, as meaning the members of the varsity squad. Not that the members of the second squad are not men in our eyes. But, five of the second string men all dressed up in their mourning costumes of black jerseys were led into the Stadium even before the martyrs of old, to be fed to the lions, Coach Leo Leary, and may we interject right here that this name Leo is particularly appropriate, as it is the Latin word for lion, chose a centre, a quarterback, and three halfbacks, and after touching them a few formations to told them to go through a few passes that his ends, namely O'Brien Gardner, Crocker and Corbett might practice getting past the interference for the runner, and incidentally mark the interference in any way they saw fit. And they went at it like good lions and the black jerseyed lambs had a nice time indeed. Injection Rod, judging on this performance, but there is no doubt the ends were greatly benefited and will doubtless show an improvement in the game Saturday. The sacrifice of the men is surely worth the victory of the few.

THREE DAYS OF HARD WORK

THERE will be only three days of scrimmage this week, today, Wednesday and Thursday and on Friday the squad will have a light work practice, consisting of dummy scrimmage in which the team will line up against each other and half run through their formations to learn their passes perfectly on each play. Today's scrimmage is the hardest of the week, for the men are good and fresh after the rest of Sunday and the blustering up process of Monday.

WILLETTS JOINS SICK LIST.

NONE of the sick list have returned to play, and the majority of them have not yet reported to the field, except Trumbull and Dewey, both of whom appear on hand each afternoon and report that the hard work doled out to their punting brethren. They will get theirs, soon enough, and may they enjoy their forced idleness just now. Willetts is the latest man on the sick list, having injured a bone in his left leg—no, we mean limb. He will probably be out for a week or more, and the incentive he will derive by his exercise in passing his mates on Saturday will probably preclude his fate in this matter today, and it is very evident that the coaches have decided to let him be, being a lie to get away with the ordeal, as he has been in the varsity line-up for the past couple of days.

It certainly did look good to see Hardwick. Mahan and Trumbull bunched in one set of backs and if they don't make the best backfield in the country we will eat our colletta shirt. The men are not getting to the point where they are beginning to show their real mettle and they don't have to show much to pass muster in the race.

MANY FAULTS IN PUNTING.

THE poor punting in the game against Maine had the effect of a long punting practice for four of the most promising candidates in this department of the game. Hardwick, Mahan, Trumbull and Dewey were the men who had the honor of being selected for the task, and his kicks were certainly varied with a wicked twist to the ball that reminded one of the Felton. Mahan was all around, with no one thing to find fault, for at times he had them away with the best of them, but his average was not at fault, as he was the only man who could be depended upon to get off a long one, and by the way Lucas Harvard coaches are the most skeptical of every one having apparently come from Missouri that he has varsity stuff in him. Hardwick is another crafty kicker, high, low, short and far, but seldom with the right combinations such as high and far in the same boot. In case Hardwick cannot help out, Mahan will probably get the call unless he starts to kick his knees off. It is hard to guess as to the outcome of such a thing just yet.

LINEMEN GET INSTRUCTIONS

THE old device for taking the men down under the flying shoulders of a runner was brought into being with the coming of fall football, and the men have been getting their share of it. Hardwick and Mahan have had the knack of it down pat, and Trumbull is getting the men under the spirit of the thing. The men have the spirit for it, and it is only a question of time when they will be able to get down under the runner with the best of them.

TO USE OPEN-STYLE PLAY.

DURING the plays used in practice the policy of the Harvard team this season is going to be one of open play, to take advantage of forward passes with reference to kicks and the like. Plays that mean much "ifs" and "buts" when played in Maine and Pennsylvania would be suicidal in Harvard today. Open play generally precludes having three yards to gain, and lacks all of the monotony of the old style of play. Hardwick and Mahan are adepts at end running tactics. If plays were made for those men and possibly Mahan, the only passer in the team, would tend toward a distinctly more open game than followed the [illegible] and would be [illegible] Harvard [illegible].

LESLIE OUT WITH COACHES.

HARVARD coaching staff is now augmented by the return of Dr. Leslie to the fold from which he left on the 1911 team when he [illegible] months ago. Leslie is also with the [illegible] weight and [illegible] centre of the line. Leslie was on the all star team of Haughton's [illegible] and [illegible] Leslie [illegible] Harvard [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

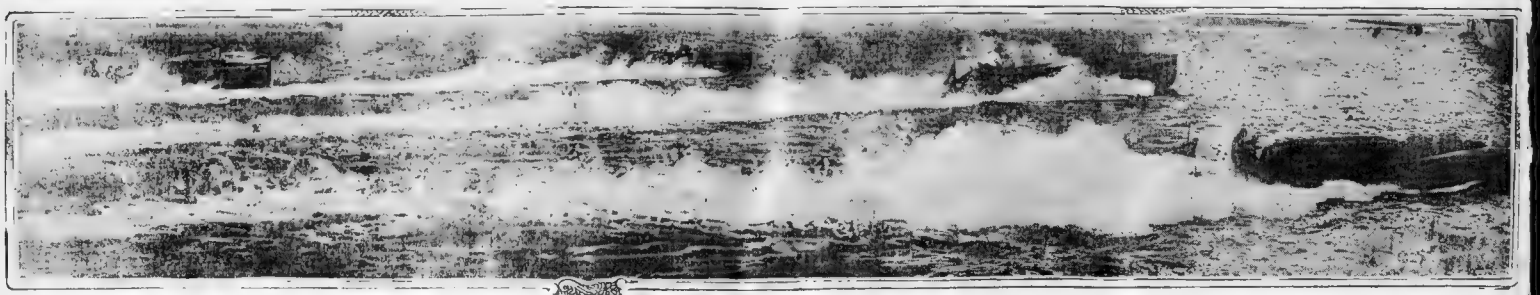
Through the Water at Fifty-seven Miles an Hour

—A Striking Picture of the World's Greatest Speed Achievement in Hydroplanes—



Here is one of the most wonderful pictures ever taken of a hydroplane race.

Aside from its pictorial value, the greatest interest is centred in the fact that the leading boat is traveling at a rate of fifty-seven miles an hour, breaking all water records for speed, and going at a pace that would be considered extremely fast for an automobile or an express train.

This picture was taken off Cowes, England, during the race less than a month ago for the International Motor Boat trophy.

While marvellous progress has been going on in the development of aircraft and automobiles, the boat builders have not been idle, and in the production of Maple Leaf IV. they have brought out a gasoline-engine propelled boat that will probably hold the speed record on the water for some time to come.

The other boats in the picture are, No. 2, Crusader, also a British built boat; No. 3, Izme, representing France, and last, but not least, as she held a good position in all three trials for the cup, the Ankle Deep, from the United States.

As fifty-seven miles an hour was Maple Leaf's average speed over a course of thirty knots, including turns, it is estimated that at times she by far exceeded a mile-a-minute rate.

Miss Fairfax Talks to a Girl

Ashamed of Mother

If You Have Ever Felt Like This Girl You Should Read This Article

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR BEATRICE FAIRFAX:

My father is a well-to-do man—we live in a pretty house in a pretty yard, and a wear pretty clothes. I have lots of nice friends, and every time one of them comes to see me, my mother comes into the parlor and talks about the big washing she has just done, or the big ironing she intends to do tomorrow, and I could sink into the floor, I am so mortified. She simply will do it no matter what I say or do. My brother is awfully worked up about it, too, but father just laughs and won't do a thing. What would you do?

I'D laugh with father, that's what I would do, and I'd get brother to laugh with him, too—he certainly has the best of that bargain so far, hasn't he?

Are you sure mother doesn't laugh, too, when you are not looking? Perhaps mother is a bit of a joker herself, and has lots of fun horrifying your fastidious friends.

You can never tell, you know—people don't lose their sense of humor when they get to be forty—not always; honestly, they do not. For all you know mother may be having the time of her life watching your face when she tells about the washing and the ironing—and then—what is there to be ashamed of about it, anyhow? You don't seem to mind your mother doing the work; you just seem to be ashamed of her telling of it.

Why?

Is the work too hard for her? Why don't you whirl in and help her then? There's nothing like a good day's washing for developing a fine figure and complexion, you know—and couldn't brother take a hand turning the wringer once in a while?

Why don't you ask him and see?

What is there so disgraceful about a good day's work well done? Is that considered a disgrace in your particular set?

Why?

So the company laughs, does it, and tries to hide the mirth?

Well, now I wouldn't care much for company like that, and whisper—pick out the ones who laugh the most and have a look into their family tree.

You chances to one there's a good big washing hanging on two or three of the lines—that's the sort—that's the sensible tree that counts, too, a lot of times, don't forget that.

Ashamed of your mother because she does her own work and isn't ashamed of it?

What do you want her to do—tell fibs about it?

Get up before daylight to do your pretty frocks and then flop that fine new laundress is such a bother tearing everything so disgracefully?

Ashamed of mother, poor mother, and who is it who makes you so? Some high school lad who hasn't half mother's good hard sense in his head?

Some little goose of a girl who doesn't care a pin for you, really, and never would if your mother had a dozen laundresses?

I know a girl who has a mother who must be like yours in some ways. The girl I know is clever, pretty, a wit, and a great social success. She came to Boston to study music and mother went along. What do you think the girl I know did?

Hid mother in a back room somewhere and blushed when she saw her coming!

Not at all. She told everyone what a fine mother she had; so good, so sensible, so clever, and everyone had to meet mother, and before that girl had been East six months half the students at the smart conservatory were fishing for invitations to come and eat mother's biscuit and preserves and listen to mother's homely wit. That girl was the social success of the year in her class, and her mother made her so, too, and she knew it, and was proud of it.

Mother talks about the washing. You talk about it, too. Tell what a good starcher she is and how she loves to iron. Don't let anyone make you act ashamed of the good woman who gave you life. It doesn't pay. It never will pay. And it's a good thing that it doesn't.

Mother is worth all the light-headed friends you'll ever make a dozen times over, and if you don't believe it now, some day you will. So, that's the answer.

The Ways of the Bereft

THE serpent probably acquired his reputation for wisdom by getting here before there were any widows.

The reason a widow succeeds better than a girl is that the girl depends upon love, while a widow puts her faith in schemes.

A widower uses his children as an excuse for marrying again the same as he uses them for going to the circus.

The times have changed. Men do not look for dead wives as industriously as they once did.

Shortly after a woman dies her friends who are too good to gossip sigh and sorrowfully that it is a very good thing the dead don't know what is going on in this world.

When a woman is fatally ill reflections of the next world are mixed as disquieting as thoughts of the pretty widow in the next block.

It often happens when a man is left a widower that instead of his children making trouble for him he gets to it first.

The second Summer is as hard on a widow as on a baby.

The only time it is excusable for a man to be neglectful of his personal appearance is when he is a fresh widower, and then it is really commendable.

A widow's love affairs are Cupid's dull reading, but a widower's are his funny papers.

For a few weeks after his wife's death a widower looks at women with the indifference that characterizes a sick man, but soon he gets over it.

It is a wonder that it is not demanded of the bereft that they put up new monuments every time the styles change.

There are not enough men to go around, which accounts for the change of sentiment regarding widowers. Formerly it was an outrage when they married again; now it is a duty.

When some men marry the second time, every one is reminded of a boy who has to learn his lesson over again.

It often happens that a man retained to the last a reputation for good sense because his wife outlived him, and he never had a chance as a widower to show how big a fool he could be.

—FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

SAME, BUT DIFFERENT

An artist relates that a newly betrothed lover commissioned him to paint a certain secluded nook in the rocks on the shore, because there he had declared his passion.

The picture was painted, but before it was done the lover said to the artist:

"Of course, I will see you through on that picture, but my engagement is off, and, naturally, it would be painfully suggestive to me. If you can sell it to somebody else I will take it off your picture, and be extremely obliged besides."

The painter assented to the arrangement, but within a week his patron presented himself.

"It's all right," he announced. "I'll take that picture."

"Am I to congratulate you on the renewal of your engagement?" the artist asked.

The other seemed a little confused, but quickly recovered his self possession, and laughed as he said:

"Well, not exactly; it was the same place, but the girl was different."

Gave Himself Away.

A well-known university professor who has taken much interest in the woman suffrage movement, was persuaded to carry a banner in a parade.

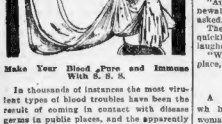
His wife observed him marching with a dejected air and carrying his banner so that it hung limply on its standard, and later she reproved him for not making a better appearance.

"Why didn't you march like somebody, and let people see your banner?" she said.

"My dear," meekly replied the professor, "did you see what was on the banner? It said: 'Any man can vote. Why can't I?'"

Pimples Source of Great Danger

May be Means of Absorbing Disease Germs in Most Unexpected Manner.



Make Your Blood Pure and Immune With S. S. S.

In thousands of instances the most virulent types of blood troubles have been the result of coming in contact with disease germs in public places, and the apparently insignificant pimple has been the cause. It spreads with astonishing rapidity, often infecting the entire system in a few days.

It is fortunate, however, that there is a remedy to cope quickly and thoroughly with such a condition, and thanks to the energy of its producers the famous S. S. S. may now be had at most any drug store in the civilized world.

This preparation stands alone as a blood purifier. It is somewhat revolutionary in its composition, since it accomplishes all that was ever claimed for mercury, iodides, arsenic, and other destructive mineral drugs, and yet it is absolutely a purely vegetable product. It contains one ingredient which serves the active purpose of stimulating each tiny cellular part of the tissues to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. There are more cases of articular rheumatism, locomotor ataxis, paresis, neuritis, and similar diseases resultant from the use of mercury than most people are aware of. These facts are brought out in a highly interesting book compiled by the medical department of The Swift Specific Co., 217 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is mailed free, together with special information, to all who write describing their symptoms.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, but be careful not to have something palmed off on you falsely claimed to be "just as good."

The only reason why anyone will try to sell you something in place of S. S. S. is for extra profit.

THE art of dressing! Is not that subject dear to the heart of every daughter of Eve? Sometimes I think our mother Eve must have learned some effective draperies in fig leaves, and that her first efforts to be charming bear fruit in our desire today to be chic!

The art of dressing! Are you not happy, serene, sure of yourself and your power when you know you look your best?

But come, confess—how often are you quite, quite sure that you look your best? Shall I give you my rules? Shall I give you the benefit of my study of the tricks of costuming yourself to the very best advantage?

As a French woman I take a natural interest in "le grand chic"—in the idea of being smart and dainty as well. As an actress I have had to study how to make the most of my every good point. As a woman, I shall gladly give my sisters the benefit of all that I have learned.

First, I shall give you a few rules and suggestions. Then from the general, I shall proceed to the particular and draw a parallel and some suggestions from the clothes you see pictured here.

SIMPLE RULES

Every woman should dress according to her height, complexion and figure. In order to do this, be sure that you have a careful inventory of exactly what your height, complexion and figure are. Before going on your shopping tour, TAKE ONE GOOD LOOK IN YOUR TRUTHFUL MIRROR.

The mirror portrays facts; be sure that you do not deceive yourself about what you see there. Know yourself and your clothes possibilities. If you are not sure of your own taste and artistic ability, consult a few faithful friends, and never allow yourself to be flattered by the saleswoman who has seen you for but a few minutes. "In a multitude of counsel lies wisdom"—that you know.

The tall woman must avoid long lines of an exaggerated sort and stripes, even as the short one must refuse to wear large plaids. If you are in any way different from the average, don't emphasize that difference until it amounts to an abnormality.

The texture and color of your clothes should harmonize with your complexion. For instance, if you have very high color you will of a surety not wear white.

A very red face above white garments looks grotesque—Satan masquerading in the garb of an angel is the unpleasant suggestion of this combination. A pale complexion is emphasized by dark material.

Now, if your pallor is your beauty and you want to bring out your clear whiteness of skin, wear dark clothes. But if you are painfully pale do not make yourself look like a lean and hungry Cassius (as your Mr. Shakespeare put it) by wearing dark and sombre garments.

Be simple, be neat, study HARMONY IN COLORING—and make sure that your clothes fit you. "Fit" you is an important word to emphasize. Have your clothes fit your figure and have them fitting for your figure and coloring.

Now, mesdames, behold some illustrations of my ideas and theories: In the centre is Figure 1. I am wearing a suit that you can develop for the Winter in supple satin broadcloth, with an inset of biscuit-colored cloth at the bottom of the skirt, for tiny undersleeves and even for a waistcoat to give you greater warmth. Please notice the extremely long line of the surplice crossing. This long V from shoulder to waist makes a woman look tall and svelt. The slope of the braid below the hips gives further slenderness, and the fulness below the armhole and in the drapery conceals any surplus fat. Don't ever get the idea that tight clothes will make you appear slender and youthful. Tight clothes reveal—and they generally reveal the stout woman with unflattering clearness.

AN EVENING GOWN

Figure 2, on the left, is one of my pet evening gowns. If you do not wish to go to the extreme expense of an elaborately beaded robe, you may use my ideas in any supple clinging material. The long, round train adds height; the drapery and tiny slit in front make it easy to walk in a close-fitting and clinging gown. The long V at the back of the gown will add to the apparent length of your waist. The cap-shaped sleeve permits you to show your white shoulder without sacrificing modesty, and finally the tunic, with its flaring line, will conceal hips that are slightly too large. But this line around the figure is not for the woman who must avoid anything that will make her look fat and dumpy!

And now for my smart little black and white street gown on the right. Black and white are wonderful in clever combination. Clear white gives a touch of youth, and black makes the slender silhouette. This gown is only for the tall, slender woman, as the white blouse and black skirt will cut off too great height. The postilion back and the skirt gathered about your knees will conceal angles. The sleeve of chiffon cloth set in from shoulder to waist line are soft and becoming.

And now, mesdames, add to my plain truthfulness a chat with your truthful mirror. Which of my suggestions are for you? Which must you avoid? Know thyself. Know yourself, mademoiselle, and soon your admiring world will not know you—for you will be transformed to your own greatest loveliness.

Barren Soil

A veteran of the Civil War, talking to his great-grandson, a little lad of eight or nine years, remarked:

"Nearly a generation and a half ago my head was grazed by a bullet at the battle of Chickamauga."

The little boy looked at the old man's head thoughtfully and said:

"There isn't much grazing there now, is there, sir?"

Independence

"I want the women strikers to have the independent spirit of a lady I used to know," said the leader, addressing some of the strikers. "This lady had a neighbor who had prospered. The neighbor, a very spiteful sort, for all her prosperity, said to the lady one day:

"'I see you're still your own wash woman, Kate.'

"'Yes,' Kate answered cheerfully, 'but, thank goodness, I haven't yet been reduced to playing nursemaid to a poodle dog.'"

Girls! Girls! Save your hair! Make it grow luxuriant and beautiful.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with health and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then comes thin hair, full out, fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or lusterless, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

The Head Waitress

Marie's Tiff with the Steady Customer Makes the Air Chilly

By HANK.

"MARIE is sure mad at you," said the Head Waitress to the Steady Customer, as he grabbed a handful of paper napkins in the Cafe d'Enfant. "She says she won't ever speak to you again for spreading that story about her being stuck on a mounted cop."

"I didn't spread the story," squirted the Steady Customer. "I just heard it and kidded her about it. Some people can't stand a little kidding."

HER BLONDE SISTER.

"That's true," said the Head Waitress, "but then Marie is a very sensitive girl. All blondes is sensitive. I've got a blonde sister and she's so sensitive that she almost broke up the moving picture show the other night by worrying out loud at all the sad pictures.

"I went to a moving picture show last night," said the Steady Customer, "one of those shows where they have imitation vaudeville between pictures and banjo players right on the stage. One of them looked like a bartender and the other looked like a shave so badly in his face cast a shadow on his dress shirt front. I heard some people behind me talking about first one woman declaring they were fine looking fellows and had good features. I couldn't understand that because the features of one of them was all covered over with bristles. Then her companion remarked that they looked like a couple of young farmer men that had been eating cheese sandwiches in an Owl wagon. I never saw anybody yet who could look good and eat a cheese sandwich at the same time."

THE NEW MUSTACHES

"Some people ain't got no idea of beauty," said the Head Waitress. "I seen a lovely young girl the other day gushing all over a high-collared bloke with a thousand-to-one on his upper lip. I never could stand for no man with one of them eye-brow mustaches, and I can't see no beauty in it, at all."

"In the old days every man had a mustache and a beard," replied the Steady Customer.

"That was because there wasn't no safety razors and no barbers," said the Head Waitress. "I've got a brother-in-law what is a barber, and he's worrying out loud at all the sad pictures.

STOCK MARKET AND FINANCIAL NEWS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

The final market was dull during the first hour and Boston & Maine declined 1⅛ and New Haven a fraction. United Fruit rose ¼ point. There was not much price movement in mines. Alaska Gold shaded.

By 11 o'clock in New York Union Pacific had partly recovered, being but ⅝ lower. The tone had much improved there and gains were the rule. Among stocks which had advanced were Canadian Pacific ⅝, Northern Pacific ⅝, Southern Pacific ¾, Reading ⅝, American Can 1, Steel ⅛, Amalgamated ⅜, American Smelting ⅝, Interborough-Metropolitan preferred ⅝, Missouri Pacific 1¼, Utah Copper ½ and Illinois Central ½.

Union Pacific Heavily Sold.

There was heavy selling of Union Pacific around the opening of the New York market and it declined a point and a half within a few minutes. Traders thought that there would be no announcement today by the road's management as to extra disbursement soon. There was decidedly less faith in "melon" cutting in speculative circles.

Union Pacific directors' executive committee held yesterday were preliminary for the regular weekly one held this morning. Chairman Lovett and Messrs. Hughitt, Kahn, Schiff, Rockefeller and Vanderlip have been discussing something, but have not divulged what they talked about. When Chairman Lovett was asked if it had been decided what kind of an extra distribution would be made, the most information that could be got on that point was embodied in his reply:

"We had to dispose of the Southern Pacific, and that, of course, involved a great many questions. Since the sale of the stock new questions have arisen, and we have had to get together to take our bearings. We discussed certain subjects, but I will not say what they were. We often get together to confer on affairs of the railroad, so there should be nothing surprising about today's two meetings."

While stock market sentiment was bearish and most stocks were lower, Missouri Pacific rose ⅝ on notification that the road's floating debt had been wiped out. Among the stocks to decline were Steel, Reading, People's Gas, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Nevada Consolidated, Lehigh Valley, Great Northern, American Beet Sugar, American Car & Foundry, American Smelting, Anaconda, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie and St. Paul.

American Can, New Haven, Amalgamated and Southern Pacific gained fractionally.

The curb was steady.

Americans in London were quiet. Canadian Pacific was sluggish there on the report of Angora earnings. Net earnings decreased $750,786.

Estimated Tariff Receipts.

It is estimated that the government receipts under the new tariff law for the fiscal year beginning July 1 next will amount to $1,020,000,000, and that expenditures will total $1,008,000,000, leaving a surplus of $18,000,000. It is figured that the income from custom house duties will amount to $240,000,000. This is where changes in the tariff law are of the most consequence.

Under the new act the United States is nearer a free trade basis than it has ever been. The Wilson administration has kept its pledge to revise the tariff downward. Among manufacturers it is a question whether the tariff has been revised too much for their business interests. New England is said to be as affected as much, if not more, than any other section. According to the time schedule for enactment, the new tariff should be in force by the end of this week.

Intended to Cut Cost of Living.

On the free list are cattle, sheep and other food animals, flour, wheat, eggs, bananas, sugar, wool, agricultural machinery, sewing machines, lumber, leather, shoes, pig iron, scrap iron, ferromanganese, coal, asphalt and a number of other articles.

The members of the measure expect that it will reduce the cost of living. High prices for the necessaries of life were blamed upon the tariff by Democrats. Republicans said that the cost of living had increased as much proportionately where the tariff was lowest as in the United States, and that in the long run a reduction of the tariff would cause a reduction of the cost of living.

Now the people of the United States will have a chance to learn which school of statesmanship is right.

Regarding the bill, which is in the last stages of enactment, Leader Representative Underwood of Alabama, Democratic leader in the House, said last night:

"The bill is lower in its average than either the House or the Senate bill as originally passed, because the House accepted most of the Senate's decreases and rejected most of its increases."

Tariff and Steel Trade.

There is fear that the steel trade in this country is going to be hard hit by the new tariff. Although manufacturers have cut prices, foreigners are still able to undersell them. The European demand for steel products does not keep all mills there going at full time for to fulfill home requirements, foreigners sell send their surplus into the United States. This morning one reliable observer said:

"Steel prices at the mills are now off $2 to $3 per ton from the high level, and billets are selling from $3 to $6 lower abroad than here.

"Other steel products are selling much lower in the foreign market than here. The effect that this would have under free steel legislation is not cheering to American steel makers. Prices in both Great Britain and Germany show a drooping tendency.

"If pig iron was free today English makers could export their surplus to our best markets and make a fair profit."

Financial News in Brief.

The London copper warrants opened firm with spot and futures each 5s higher.

Up to Monday evening Canada had obtained $2,000,000 in gold from New York. Banks in the Dominion are building up reserves for October 1.

During the three months which ended September 5, deposits in New York State banks diminished $2,000,000, while their loanings $2,253,801, while there were increases of $2,591,089 in State bank loans and $1,000,000 in the deposits' aggregate surplus and undivided profits.

President Quinlin of the Rock Island Company said that the gain of $1,000,000 to the corn crop will cut gross earnings of the Rock Island system more than $1,000,000 and net about 10 per cent, during the current year.

Illinois Central's net revenue increased $67,187 in August.

Jacoby Club Quits Emmanuel Church

Officers in Difference With Rector, Causing Schism.

The Jacoby Club for Men, formerly connected with Emmanuel Church on Newbury street, has been obliged to sever its connection with that church, on account of a difference with the rector of that church, the Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester.

New quarters have been secured at No. 127 Newbury street, where it will occupy the first floor of that building and do its work of getting employment for men. It has already a membership of forty-five and is under the presidency of Ernest Jacoby, of Back Bay.

Symphony Sunday Concert October 12

The first Sunday afternoon concert of the season in Symphony Hall will be given October 12 at 3:30, a violin recital by the Bohemian artist, Jan Kubelik. He begins his season with this recital.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

There is a movement on foot among the stockholders of the Selden Motor Company to again build Selden cars and motor trucks. According to the plans, the new company is being formed to take over and operate the business. Those back of the company that is being formed for the purpose of operating the automobile business are so close to the American Locomotive Company that the latter is understood to be reconsidering its determination to go into business into other hands, and it is not improbable that the automobile department may be sold to the new company as a going concern at a figure very favorable to the new purchasers, and which at the same time will represent so much "velvet" or unexpected profit to the older company. It is likely that important developments will take place during the coming week.

The Franklin Motor Car Company of Boston, distributors of the Franklin car for the greater part of New England, is to move its entire organization to No. 616 Commonwealth avenue, thus getting all departments under one roof.

At the same time this is accomplished the company will take over the Harmon Automobile Company. Franklin agents in Portland, Me., and operators of the Harmon will with Chillis, salesman for the Harmon Company, as manager.

The Stutz Company has already sent in their entry of two cars for the Brighton spoills Speedway race on next Memorial Day. Harry Thompson, of Battle Creek, Mich., will be sportsman at the wheel. And which Billy Liesaw drove last year, has come to the front again this year. He will have the car with his name on it. Special, but will be entirely different from the one which raced last year.

DID IT EVER OCCUR TO YOU
IF ONE MAN WITH
$100,000
CAN MAKE IT EARN FROM TEN TO TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS A YEAR

That a number of persons banded together for the purpose of making money—with $10 EACH to begin with and 10 CENTS A DAY paid monthly for 24 months—upon a CO-OPERATIVE PLAN can accomplish the same results?

How would you like to share proportionately in such an income in accordance with the amount you pay monthly?

Money is an active principle, and when properly employed makes more than ordinary rates of interest. It can be made to DOUBLE ITSELF in a short time.

You can make money with your small monthly savings—you can secure an increasing annual income without interfering with your present occupation or depriving yourself of funds already saved.

The only way to learn about this plan is to send for full particulars.

The Druid Priests and the Water Monopoly.

Victory for San Francisco in the Hetch-Hetchy Valley Fight a Triumph Over Forces of a Selfish Political Corporation

The United States Senate Committee has reported favorably the House bill that gives San Francisco its mountain water supply. The great Pacific city is now within hailing distance of the accomplishment of the splendid project that was for so many years a dream of the far-sighted civic planners of the West.

When the Hetch-Hetchy water comes down from the high Sierras to the bay, the Pacific metropolis and other bay communities will be able to boast of the most magnificent water supply of any big city in the world.

The consummation of this plan means more than the realization of a civic dream; more than a triumph of modern sanitation; it is the culmination of victory over the forces of selfish monopoly that have held back the progress of a great city.

The necessity of the Sierra water supply and its availability have been recognized and urged in reports in San Francisco for a generation. During the early years of the fight the local water company was able to block the project by the familiar methods of a political corporation. Those were the days of domination by the railroads, and by such local corporations as this company; the days of corrupt city administration; the days when a boss delivered such civic goods as were wanted by "Big Business" able to pay, and none other.

So the monopoly of the Spring Valley Water Company was preserved and it seemed as if the only way out of its thraldom was for San Francisco to purchase the inadaquate water convenience at the exhorbitant price set by the monopoly itself.

But the years brought civic honesty and municipal independence. Municipal ownership of street railroads marked the growth of the new spirit and the time was come when a corporation could rely no longer on either direct or indirect bribery to prevent the city's getting a pure and adequate water supply.

Then began what was probably the most remarkable campaign ever undertaken by a corporation. The cry went up that the beauties of the mountains were to be desecrated. The artists and nature lovers were appealed to to prevent the transformation of one of nature's wonder spots into a city convenience. And the marvel of it is that for a time it succeeded in holding the city from the pure drinking water.

Hetch-Hetchy is a wild and beautiful canyon; probably not a thousand people have visited it since its discovery, so inaccessible is it. The changing of its rugged floor into a mountain lake will not only enhance the apparent height of the sheer cliffs that are its walls, but the improvement compels the building and maintaining of adequate roads which will make it as easy to reach as any other part of the Yosemite country.

Doubtless there were many picturesque old farms back in the Catskills that were wiped out by the new system of water supply for New York City. The construction of the cribs in Lake Michigan to give Chicago the water it requires added nothing to the beauties of the waterscape—in fact, these homely structures break the sky line rather unpleasantly—but it occurred to nobody to protest on behalf of the Catskill farms or the level lake line on the score of aestheticism and nature worship.

Druid priests were never enlisted in so Philistine a service as the attempt to conserve the monopoly of the private water company in San Francisco.

It only remains for the United States Senate to confirm the verdict of its committee and the Western Metropolis will reap the benefit of as fine and persistent a fight for the welfare of its people as a city ever made.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

TIME FOR ACTION IN MEXICO.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—The time for decisive action by the United States toward Mexico has come. Many of our citizens who were lured into Mexico by the prospect, if not promise, that peace and order would be maintained and protection extended, have been robbed and murdered. Our property to the extent of [illegible] millions has been injured or destroyed. Having been struck on one cheek, we have meekly turned the other, only to be [illegible] on ten fold harder. If, therefore, the people of the United States further continue and truckle to the present alleged Mexican Government they will be acting the part of fools or cowards, or both.

The dictates of our manhood and [illegible] ties of humanity alike forbid that we should further submit to such outrages and losses.

The way for us to manifest our friendship for those people is by rebuking them and promoting their welfare as well as ours.

"BEST EDITORIAL THAT I HAVE EVER READ"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN.

Dear Sir—I have been a reader of the Boston AMERICAN since the first issue was printed. Before that time I purchased the New York American. I also purchase from four to seven daily papers as well as three Sunday papers, and I want to tell you that the editorial entitled, "Why is Thaw Made a Hero in New Hampshire or He Was in Canada," is the best editorial that I have ever read. It is true, every word, and I want to congratulate you for having courage enough to write and print it.

THE MEXICAN MUDDLE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Even should the Mexican constitutional presidential election be held in October, what guarantee can there be that new recruitings will not be soon inaugurated by the opponents of the man selected, and the reign of murder and lawlessness go on?

HELEN STEWART CAMPBELL.

Pity the Rich Man Struggling TO BE HAPPY.

Only the Foolish Envy Him. Happiness CANNOT BE BOUGHT.

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

A few individuals in this country have a million or more a year. A good many have incomes running into the hundreds of thousands. A great many have incomes exceeding fifty thousand dollars a year.

Below that, as you may be surprised to hear, a man is not considered "rich" in our day.

The chief task of those that have a great fortune is SPENDING MONEY AND TRYING TO BUY HAPPINESS.

It is easy to spend money, IMPOSSIBLE TO BUY HAPPINESS. And you can read that truth in the bored, tired, characterless faces of the "idle rich," excellently described and analyzed by Frederick Townsend Martin in Hearst's September Magazine, from which we reproduce the pictures at the top of this page.

Martin knows the world that he describes and analyzes. He has had hard work for years trying to escape being one of the IDLE rich.

Read what he says, if it interests you, in Hearst's Magazine.

The following facts interest you and everybody else:

The IDLE rich are not happy and cannot be happy. For idleness itself is a curse, and the spending of money, no matter how lavishly or foolishly, cannot buy the peace that comes with a useful, active mind.

Not all the rich, fortunately for this country, are idle.

Rockefeller spends his millions for education, for scientific research and spends on himself for personal pleasure and self-indulgence less than is spent by many a man with an income below twenty thousand dollars. He is happy—because he is building, constructing, competing, getting pleasure in activity, not trying to buy it.

So it is with all the big builders, such men as Hill, Gould and Gary and the thousands of other directing workers in whose lives spending is only an unimportant incident.

Really miserable and to be pitied are the IDLE rich. Those that you see in this picture are trying to buy for money the pleasure that cannot be bought.

The biggest grunting automobile, when it carries an empty, idle brain, gives no pleasure. The foolish striving and struggling, the costly cotillons, the jewels, the great houses, armies of servants and all the rest of it, you need not envy.

Even the monkey dinner itself is a bitter disappointment, regardless of the monkey's good behavior, and when it is over the poor monkey turns his round brown eyes sadly on his fellow monkeys of society and would say to them, if he could: "Why don't you let me go home? There are happier monkeys than you in the trees where I used to live."

It is important that this should BE A REAL REPUBLIC, the men and women believing in democracy and equality. And it is important for that reason that our people should understand, and not envy, look up to, or snobbishly ape, those idle rich whom Martin dissects in his Hearst Magazine article.

A man gradually paying for a respectable little house, living morally and at peace with a woman passionately devoted to her children, working and planning every minute for their welfare, is infinitely better than the poor goose who drives the four horses that are out of fashion or the stupid woman, too wasted and worn and tired to be interested in her own husband, too characterless to interest any serious man.

Do not envy the idle rich. They are the unhappy, the dissatisfied—usually the characterless and the immoral.

Envy the man and woman who are living and working, planning and building TOGETHER.

All real happiness is in creation, and you cannot buy a good thought with a million dollars, or ten millions, and all the strings of pearls and diamond sunbursts, and humble servants cannot bring happiness compared to that of the poor woman content in caring for her children and respecting the man who works for them both.
